Strategic Goals and Sub-Goals

Proposed Goals

- Proposed National TWH Agenda includes four strategic goals: research, practice, policy, and capacity-building
- Achievement of goals will move Nation towards creation of work environments that support TWH approaches
- Each strategic goal supported by sub-goals that lead to the achievement of the strategic goal
- Intent is to jumpstart national conversation and elicit input/comment from stakeholders to develop the most relevant TWH agenda

Research Goals

Strategic Goal 1. Advance and conduct etiologic, surveillance, and intervention research that builds the evidence base for effectively integrating health protection and health promotion activities in the workplace.

Etiologic/health effects research

Investigate work and non-work contributions to worker safety and health conditions to better understand their sources and identify TWH interventions.

Surveillance research

- Improve surveillance systems to expand study of risks to worker safety, health, and well-being by incorporating more information on:
 - work-related exposures in public health surveys and other surveillance systems; and
 - non-work conditions and exposures in occupational safety and health hazard surveys and other surveillance systems.
- Expand current surveillance systems or develop new ones to track the adoption and reach of TWH interventions over time.
- Develop measures to guide integrated interventions in organizations, such as Health Risk Appraisals, that reliably capture both work-related and non-work exposures that pose safety and health risks.

Intervention research

- Investigate the merits of integrated interventions relative to comprehensive but parallel worksite health promotion (WHP) and occupational safety and health (OSH) protection interventions, and to unilateral WHP or OSH interventions.
- Address a broad range of outcomes to include:
 - subclinical (e.g., biomarkers), health status (morbidity and mortality), and health-related quality of life indicators of illness, injury, and well-being to better understand the efficacy and effectiveness of integrated intervention strategies; and
 - measures of organizational effectiveness (e.g., turnover, presenteeism, and other performance indicators) and economic indicators to better understand the cost-effectiveness of TWH programs and help establish the business case for integrated prevention strategies.
- Give further attention to the theoretical underpinnings of TWH intervention studies to better understand why and under what circumstances TWH interventions can be effective.

- Investigate organizational policies and practices that support or detract from the adoption, development, effectiveness, efficacy, and sustainability of integrated occupational safety and health protection and health promotion programs.
- Investigate the broader integration of:
 - workplace prevention activities (i.e., benefit programs and policies, Employee Assistance Programs) together with occupational safety and health and health promotion activities; and
 - community and public health prevention activities together with workplace prevention activities.
- Design TWH interventions to target workers at high-risk for exposure to both work-related and non-work hazards.
- Design TWH interventions for especially prevalent and costly conditions (e.g., mental health outcomes) that result from joint exposure to work-related and non-work hazards.

Practice Goals

Strategic Goal 2. Increase the awareness and adoption of effective, integrated occupational safety and health protection and health promotion activities in the workplace.

- Increase adoption of TWH best practices developed based on research evidence and scientifically-derived consensus statements.
- Establish partnerships with corporate, labor, government, professional, and academic organizations to foster the uptake of TWH practices in the workplace.
- Increase awareness among workers, employers, professional associations, labor unions and other stakeholders of TWH practices and their benefits in order to promote adoption of TWH approaches.
 - Increase translation and dissemination of TWH research information and practice models.
 - Develop an internet-based open source system for disseminating TWH best practices recommendations, tool kits, mobile apps, and model programs.
 - Organize national and regional conferences, distance-learning events, and other web-based educational offerings on TWH.
 - Conduct a national survey to assess the adoption of TWH practices to target dissemination and promotion activities.

Policy Goals

Strategic Goal 3. Create guidance for policies that promote integration of occupational safety and health protection and health promotion activities in the workplace.

- Develop policy guidance on TWH best practices.
- Establish mechanisms to promote corporate TWH responsibility and sustainability.
- Offer direction on TWH approaches specifically for high-risk worksites and small- and medium-sized companies.
- Explore strategies for the transfer of integrated OSH prevention activities to the general health care delivery system.

Capacity-Building Goals

Strategic Goal 4. Build professional capacity to strengthen the TWH workforce and TWH field to support the development, growth, and maintenance of integrated occupational safety and health protection and health promotion activities in the workplace.

- Identify training needs and develop core competencies and guidance for certificates, degree programs, and continuing education fostering integration of occupational safety and health protection with health promotion.
- Identify existing educational programs and curricula that support TWH concepts and training, and the best ways that federal programs and granting agencies can support these educational activities.
- Promote events and foster partnerships among TWH, OSH, public health, health promotion, and other stakeholders from multi-disciplinary sectors to strengthen the TWH field.
- Explore the benefits of creating a professional organization for TWH professionals.
