TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION: Disaster Response Training Needs Assessment

PURPOSE: The purpose of this activity is to identify disaster response training needs, priorities, and existing resources of jurisdictions impacted by the 2017 Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria in Puerto Rico, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, and Texas.

The questionnaire will be administered online using SurveyMonkey®. A link to the questionnaire will be emailed to public health department employees involved in disaster response in the above jurisdictions.

The questionnaire contains demographic questions, such as role, current employment, and number of years working in the public health field, which will help to understand the types of roles of the people who completed the survey. The questionnaire also contains a series of Likert-scale questions that ask individuals to indicate how much training they need and their level of confidence regarding core competencies for disaster response tasks. Other questions include training preferences such as preferred formats for trainings.

Collection of this information will help CDC develop a plan to address disaster response training and education needs in jurisdictions impacted by the 2017 Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria in Puerto Rico, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, and Texas. Conducting a needs assessment will help ensure that training and education efforts are appropriate for the target audience.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

Individuals taking part in the needs assessment include public health department employees involved in disaster response in Puerto Rico, Louisiana, Florida, Georgia, and Texas jurisdictions impacted by the 2017 Hurricanes Harvey, Irma, and Maria.
