The Office of Federal Student Aid's (FSA) Minority-Serving and Under-Resourced Schools Division is developing the FSA Executive Leadership Conference for Presidents and CEO's of Minority-Serving Institutions (MSIs). The goal of the FSA Executive Leadership Conference is to equip presidents and chancellors with critical knowledge and insight of Federal Student Aid, tailored to the specific needs and challenges of leaders within Minority-Serving Institutions. Participants will learn about funded programs within FSA aimed at improving student success, changes in federal compliance, maintaining institutional eligibility for Title IV funding, and FSA's emerging vision for serving the needs of students and families across the entire student aid lifecycle.

To ensure the FSA Executive Leadership Conference provides all attendees with an invaluable, executive-level experience, the Minority-Serving and Under-Resourced Schools Division is requesting your feedback regarding several key components of the conference. These key components consist of location, discussion topics, most suitable time frames, possible networking opportunities and potential speakers. The results of this survey will be utilized to finalize logistics, information sessions and associated opportunities during conference.
