Experiment 6 reading materials

The beaver is an excellent swimmer. It can achieve a speed of up to seven miles per hour in water. Its protection against the cold consists of a skin with thousands of single hairs and a thick layer of fat. With its big lungs it can easily stay under water for more than twenty minutes. The beaver is not only skilful in felling trees, but also an experienced craftsman in building dams. When the beaver fells a tree, it gnaws on the trunk in such a way that the upper and the lower part of the trunk are only connected with each other at a small point. When the connection is narrow and the beaver has become tired, the wind will do the rest. The twigs and thin branches are cut off by the beaver and piled up near its den, which is built on a small island. The thick branches are sorted out and used as wood for building dams.

Q15. Race –

We can discuss how to design this race screen. I'd like to have it designed as decennial is going to have it where the ethnicity opens up if they touch the race box, but the difference is that the Hispanic origin will be in the list as a race. We can change the instruction to something like: "Mark all the races that apply. They are allowed to mark more than one race. Be sure to enter their ethnicity as well."

Q15B: Need to repeat this question for all household members

Q15B. All the detailed ethnicities would be listed out depending on what the user selected.

Here are the other races listed out:

I have asked for updated screenshots of the race/ethnicity screens but they aren't available just yet.
