

Respondent Messages

Section 1: Official Census Bureau Business Each respondent will be shown 5 at random and asked “In your own words, what is this message telling you?”

1. We make sure that the only people who can see your responses are those who need them to perform official Census Bureau duties.
2. Only people working on official Census Bureau business can access your survey response.
3. Only a restricted number of authorized people have access to private information, and that access is granted only to conduct our work and for no other purposes.
4. The Census Bureau will:
 - a. Never share your responses with anyone who is not legally obligated to protect it
 - b. Never use your responses for anything other than statistical research
 - c. Never release your responses in any way that could identify you as an individual
5. By law, your information is confidential and can not be seen by anyone other than:
 - a. the Census Bureau employees who collect and process it,
 - b. the statisticians who tabulate it, and
 - c. specially authorized statistical researchers.
6. Your data are confidential, by law, and the people who see your responses are bound by law to protect them.
7. We are required by law to protect your information.
8. By law, the Census Bureau cannot share your data with law enforcement or allow it to be used for anything other than statistical purposes.
9. By law, we only allow access to data to conduct research that would help carry out the Census Bureau’s mission and benefit the public good.
10. By law, the only people who can see your responses are authorized researchers for approved statistical uses.
11. Your answers can only be used for statistical research. They cannot be used for any other purpose.
12. Your information is protected by law. It can only be used to produce statistics. It can never be used against you.
13. Experts review all statistical results before they are released to make sure there is no information that could identify an individual
14. The information we collect can only be used for statistical research.
15. The Census Bureau will only use your responses for statistical research. Responses can never be used to determine whether a person is eligible for a social program or a government benefit.
16. We will never share your information with law enforcement or allow it to be used to determine your eligibility for government benefits.
17. Very few authorized individuals actually see your name or other personal information that could identify you. Most of the time, personal information that could identify you is removed from the file that contains your survey or census answers.
18. Very few authorized people actually see names, addresses or other identifying information. Most of the time, personal information that could identify a person is removed from the file that contains the survey or census answers.

19. Under tightly controlled circumstances, we sometimes share responses with other federal agencies to further the Census Bureau's work. Those agencies must follow the same laws as the Census Bureau to protect your personal information.
20. Sometimes, we give a limited number of employees at other federal agencies access to your data under tightly controlled circumstances. Even in these cases the data can only be used to produce statistics.
