Thank You

. . . for the help you have given the interviewer who just visited you. It is only through your cooperation that a survey such as the National Health Interview Survey can be carried out.

When your answers are combined with information given by others, they will reflect health conditions throughout the United States and provide new knowledge to improve the health of the American people. Thus, your answers to this survey will provide better information for health policies and decisions that affect millions of people across America.

I invite you to visit our website to learn more about the National Health Interview Survey:

We are grateful for your help.
