WELCOME AND INFORMED CONSENT

Thank you for taking this confidential survey to evaluate women's physical and behavioral health in your community. Before we begin, we ask that you read our informed consent form.

Background

The 2006 discovery and subsequent development of the Parshall Oil Field has led to significant economic opportunities and population growth in in western North Dakota and eastern Montana. Rapid population growth has many intended and unintended consequences, both positive and negative, on the social and economic environment of the region and the population's health and well-being.

Purpose

The purpose of this survey is to understand the perceptions and experiences of health and behavioral health of women in western North Dakota and eastern Montana. Behavioral health is a term that covers the full range of mental and emotional well-being – from the basics of how we cope with day-to-day challenges of life, to the treatment of mental illnesses, such as depression or personality disorder, as well as substance use disorders and other addictive behaviors.

Our study includes interviews with key stakeholders, focus groups and surveys with community members. Throughout the project, our assessment is emphasizing community engagement. Our work is guided by community organizations, tribes, and state partners to ensure the assessment produces evidence that will benefit women living in “boomtown” and surrounding communities.
