Trouble Making Payments

Even if you're having trouble, keep making your federal student loan payments whenever possible to reduce your debt and the amount of interest you pay over the life of the loan.

If you need to lower your payments, consider one of the income-driven repayment plans or loan consolidation.

If you cannot afford to make any payments, or your difficulty is temporary, you can temporarily postpone or lower your payments with a deferment or forbearance.

Remember!

You MUST continue making payments on your federal student loan until you have been notified that your deferment or forbearance has been granted. If you don't, and it is not approved, you will become delinquent and may default  on your federal student loans.

Deferment

Overview

- Allows you to temporarily stop making payments on your federal student loans.
- In most cases, you are not charged interest on subsidized loans during deferment. More Information
- Interest will continue to be charged on your unsubsidized and PLUS loans, and on Direct Subsidized Loans that have lost interest subsidy. If you do not pay this interest during the deferment, it will be capitalized  at the end of the deferment.

Periods of deferment or forbearance generally do not count toward the maximum length of time you have to repay your federal student loans.

More information on deferment and forbearance conditions.

You may qualify for a deferment if you are:

Forbearance

Overview

- Allows you to temporarily stop making payments or reduce your monthly payment.
- Interest will continue to be charged. If you do not pay this interest during the forbearance, it will be capitalized at the end of the forbearance.

Forbearance is another option for temporarily postponing or reducing loan payments if you do not qualify for a deferment. A forbearance may be granted if you meet one of the following requirements:

Delinquency and Default

Falling behind on your federal student loan payments can have major consequences:

- Your federal student loan becomes delinquent the first day after you miss a payment.
- If a federal student loan is delinquent for more than 270 days, it goes into default, which will have serious consequences.

Contact your federal loan servicer if you think you will have trouble making your payments, or won't be able to pay on time.

Resolving Student Loan Disputes

Did you know?

Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL) consolidated into a Direct Consolidation Loan are eligible for repayment under the Income Contingent Repayment Plan. Loan consolidation information is available at StudentAid.gov.

Loan Consolidation

- If you have multiple federal student loans, you can consolidate them into a single Direct Consolidation Loan.
- A Direct Consolidation Loan will simplify repayment if you are making separate loan payments to different loan servicers, as you'll only have one monthly payment to make.
- There may be tradeoffs, however, so you'll want to learn about the advantages and possible disadvantages of consolidation before you consolidate.
- More Direct Consolidation Loan information is available on StudentAid.gov.

More Information

Keep Your Loan Papers

Keep your loan paperwork in a safe place, including your promissory note, disclosure notices, and billing statements.

- These provide you with a record of the terms of your federal student loan(s) and how much you have borrowed.
- Copies of your Master Promissory Note are available from this Web site if you complete your MPN electronically.
- If you choose to receive electronic correspondence regarding your federal student loan(s), copies of that correspondence will be available from this Web site or your loan servicer's Web site.
- You can find information about all of your Direct Loans and Federal Perkins Loans on the National Student Loan Data System (NSLDS).
- NSLDS does not include information about any private loans you may have received.

Finish Your Program and Graduate

[appears for Grad only]

Graduation is the first step to successfully repaying your federal student loans.

- You will increase your employability, career options, and potential income.
- Once you graduate, making smart choices about your occupation and career path can also ensure you have the resources to meet your federal student loan obligations.
- Graduation before exceeding your maximum eligibility period protects Direct Subsidized Loans received from interest subsidy loss. More Information

Pay on Time

It is very important that you make your federal student loan payments on time. If you are having trouble making your monthly payment, you should immediately contact your federal loan servicer for assistance.

Stay In Touch With Your Federal Loan Servicer

Open all your mail and read everything pertaining to your federal student loans. Signing up for electronic correspondence can help you ensure that you never miss a letter or bill.

Contact your [loan servicer \[tooltip\]](#) BEFORE you miss a payment on your federal student loan. They can help review and advise you of your repayment options. If you are unable to make your Perkins loan payment, contact your schools financial aid office.

Trouble Making Payments

Overview

- Allows you to temporarily stop making payments on your federal student loans.
- In most cases, you are not charged interest on subsidized loans during deferment. More Information
- Interest will continue to be charged on your unsubsidized and PLUS loans, and on Direct Subsidized Loans that have lost interest subsidy. If you do not pay this interest during the deferment, it will be [capitalized \[tooltip\]](#) at the end of the deferment.

Periods of deferment or forbearance generally do not count toward the maximum length of time you have to repay your federal student loans.

More information on deferment and forbearance conditions.

You may qualify for a deferment if you are:

- Enrolled at least half-time at an eligible postsecondary school.
- In a full-time course of study in a graduate fellowship program.
- In an approved full-time rehabilitation program for individuals with disabilities.
- Unemployed or unable to find full-time employment (for a maximum of three years).
- Experiencing an economic hardship (including Peace Corps service) as defined by federal regulations.
- Serving on active duty during a war or other military operation or national emergency and, if you were serving on or after October 1, 2007, for an additional 180-day period following the demobilization date for your qualifying service.
- Performing qualifying National Guard duty during a war or other military operation or national emergency and, if you were serving on or after October 1, 2007, for an additional 180-day period following the demobilization date for your qualifying service.
- A member of the National Guard or other reserve component of the U.S. Armed Forces (current or retired) and you are called or ordered to active duty while you are enrolled at least half-time at an eligible school or within 6 months of having been enrolled at least half-time, during the 13 months following the conclusion of your active duty service, or until you return to enrolled student status on at least a half-time basis, whichever is earlier.

Forbearance

Overview

- Allows you to temporarily stop making payments or reduce your monthly payment.
- Interest will continue to be charged. If you do not pay this interest during the forbearance, it will be capitalized at the end of the forbearance.

Forbearance is another option for temporarily postponing or reducing loan payments if you do not qualify for a deferment. A forbearance may be granted if you meet one of the following requirements:

- You are unable to make your scheduled loan payments for reasons including, but not limited to, financial hardship and illness.
- You are serving in a medical or dental internship or residency program, and you meet specific requirements.
- The total amount you owe each month for all of the student loans you received under Title IV of the Act is 20% or more of your total monthly gross income (for a maximum of three years).
- You are serving in an approved AmeriCorps position.
- You are performing teaching service that would qualify for loan forgiveness under the requirements of the Teacher Loan Forgiveness Program.
- You qualify for partial repayment of your loans under the Student Loan Repayment Program, as administered by the Department of Defense.
- You are called to active duty in the U.S. Armed Forces.

Falling behind on your federal student loan payments can have major consequences:

- Your federal student loan becomes delinquent the first day after you miss a payment.
- If a federal student loan is delinquent for more than 270 days, it goes into default, which will have serious consequences.

Contact your federal loan servicer if you think you will have trouble making your payments, or won't be able to pay on time.

Being delinquent or defaulting on a loan may affect many areas of your life:

Student Loans

You may be required to immediately repay the entire unpaid amount of your loan. This is known as [acceleration \[tooltip\]](#).

You will not be eligible for additional federal student aid.

You will lose eligibility for loan deferment, forbearance, and choice of repayment plans.

Future Income

Your loans may be turned over to a collection agency and you will have to pay additional charges, late fees, and collection costs.

You may have part of your income withheld by the Federal government. This is known as wage garnishment.

Your Federal and State income tax refunds may be withheld. This is known as a tax offset.

Credit Score

Your credit score will be damaged.

You may have difficulty qualifying for credit cards, car loans, or mortgages, and may be charged much higher interest rates.

You may have difficulty signing up for utilities, getting car or home owner's insurance, or getting a cell phone plan.

You may have difficulty getting approval to rent an apartment (credit checks may be required).

Did you know?

Allowing your federal student loan to go into default can instantly increase the amount you have to pay back due to the fees and penalties.

Alert!

Although your credit history is not taken into account for Direct Subsidized Loans and Direct Unsubsidized Loans, your credit history will be affected if you do not repay your federal student loans under the repayment plan you agree to when you enter repayment.

Records and Disputes

Keep Your Loan Papers

Keep your loan paperwork in a safe place, including your promissory note, disclosure notices, and billing statements.

- These provide you with a record of the terms of your federal student loan(s) and how much you have borrowed.
- Copies of your Master Promissory Note are available from this Web site if you complete your MPN electronically.
- If you choose to receive electronic correspondence regarding your federal student loan(s), copies of that correspondence will be available from this Web site or your loan servicer's Web site.
- You can find information about all of your Direct Loans and Federal Perkins Loans on the National Student Loan Data System ([NSLDS \[tooltip\]](#)).
- NSLDS does not include information about any private loans you may have received.

Resolving Student Loan Disputes

If you think there might be an issue related to a Direct Loan that your school is planning to award, speak with your school's financial aid office.

If you would like additional information to guide you through the problem resolution process, visit the Resolving Disputes section of StudentAid.gov.

If you think there might be an issue with your federal student loan, first collect and review all of your loan paperwork, then identify and document what you think the problem is. Call your loan servicer to discuss the issue.

As a last resort, if you are unable to resolve the issue by working with your loan servicer, you may contact the Federal Student Aid (FSA) Ombudsman for assistance. The FSA Ombudsman works with federal student loan borrowers to resolve disputes or issues from an impartial, independent viewpoint.

You can reach FSA's Ombudsman at:

Did you Know?

Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL) consolidated into a Direct Consolidation Loan are eligible for repayment under the Pay As You Earn and ICR plans. Loan consolidation information is available at StudentAid.gov.

Loan Consolidation

- If you have multiple federal student loans, you can consolidate them into a single Direct Consolidation Loan.
- A Direct Consolidation Loan will simplify repayment if you are making separate loan payments to different loan servicers, as you'll only have one monthly payment to make.
- There may be trade-offs, however, so you'll want to learn about the advantages and possible disadvantages of consolidation before you consolidate.
- More Direct Consolidation Loan information is available on StudentAid.gov.

CONSOLIDATION LOANS

A consolidation loan may help make payments more manageable by combining several federal student loans into one loan with one monthly payment. You need to apply for loan consolidation and choose a repayment plan. Depending on the amount of your debt and the repayment plan that you choose, the repayment period for a Direct Consolidation Loan may range from 10 to 30 years.

The interest rate for a Direct Consolidation Loan is a fixed rate. The fixed rate is the weighted average of the interest rates on all of the loans you consolidate, rounded up to the nearest one-eighth of one percent.

How can consolidation help me manage my debt?

Loan consolidation can offer you benefits to help manage your education debt. You will:

- Make lower monthly payments by increasing the repayment period (However, this will increase the total amount you repay over the life of your loan).
- Make a single monthly loan payment on one bill to one lender.

As with other loan types, you may prepay a consolidation loan without penalty and may change repayment plans if you find that your current plan no longer meets your needs.

Is there a downside to consolidation?

Although consolidation can help many students manage their monthly payments, there are some cases when consolidation may not be right for you.

- You may lose repayment incentives on FFEL Program loans that you consolidate.
- You will lose cancellation and interest subsidy benefits on any Federal Perkins Loans that you consolidate.
- Any outstanding interest on the loans you consolidate will be capitalized when you consolidate.
- Because Direct Consolidation Loans can have a repayment period of up to 30 years, you may be increasing the total amount you pay in interest.
