The selection of your targeted respondents

1. Do you have a customer list or something similar that defines the universe of potential respondents and do you have a sampling plan for selecting from this universe?

[] Yes [X] No

If the answer is yes, please provide a description of both below (or attach the sampling plan)? If the answer is no, please provide a description of how you plan to identify your potential group of respondents and how you will select them?

We plan to identify patients receiving pain management care from the panels of primary care providers who are currently attending or have previously attended Pain ECHO. We have a list of primary care providers who have attended Pain ECHO, this list will be used to identify panels of potential patients to contact for interviews on their experience. Veterans on these panels will be invited to participate if they have a chronic pain diagnosis and/or have been prescribed pain medications. Patients who meet these criteria will be randomly selected from the list until saturation is reached in the interviews or a maximum of 30 participants is reached. We aim to speak with at least 3 women veterans out of the sample. Patient contact information will be used to mail an invitation letter to eligible veterans. The invitation letter will provide contact information for the veteran to initiate or decline participation. A member of the project team may contact the veteran via telephone if there is no response from the veteran to determine if they are interested in participating. Potential participants will be called no more than twice if they are unavailable to declare their interest in the study.
