Key Informant Selection Tool – Non-Layperson

Dear _____,

Battelle plans to interview approximately 10-12 people annually in each state as part of our qualitative evaluation. We need your assistance to help us select key informants for our evaluation in each of the following categories:

- PDO Naloxone Grant program directors and program staff;
- PDO advisory committee members;
- Professional communities (non-layperson) targeted for naloxone education/training and distribution. These can be police officers, EMS, pharmacists, or other professional audiences you have targeted for your work;
- Key community partners that you work with. These can be partner organization or organizations that sub-funding is provided to;
- Key decision makers in your community. This group might be policy makers or other individuals who have the potential to influence naloxone or related policies;
- Other individuals you think are important to speak with that are not included in the above groups.

[Please do not use this tool for identifying lay-persons]

In selecting which people to interview, we wish to consider not only their roles in the PDO/Naloxone grant, but also the perspectives they offer based on their history within the community, their professional background, and their personal connections to this work. We want to talk to people who cover the range from those who have been involved in this work for many years, to those who may be newly engaged.

We would like you to help us select those individuals in your community that as a group will provide a rich understanding of how the PDO/Naloxone work is being conducted in your state and the roles that staff, partners and decision makers play in this work.

Please use the following table to organize possible candidates (list as many as appropriate). We will use this list to talk with you about the candidates and select the best mix of key informants from among these.
