Borrower Defense to Repayment Loan Discharge

Under 34 C.F.R. § 685.206 (c), if you borrowed a Direct Loan to attend school, you may be able to receive a discharge from repayment of all or part of that loan if the school you attended engaged in acts or omissions that would violate state law. (Examples include misrepresentation or withholding information, if this gives rise to a cause of action under applicable state law.)

The Department of Education is creating a process to make it as easy as possible for borrowers who attended schools that violated the law to seek loan forgiveness (discharge) based on borrower defense to repayment. More information on borrower defense to repayment and how to get your loan discharged will be made available on this page soon.

Borrowers may wish to wait for that information to be made available before applying for a Borrower Defense to Repayment Loan Discharge. But if you choose instead to submit your claim sooner, you may submit materials via email to FSAOperations@ed.gov or by mail to: Department of Education, PO Box 194407, San Francisco, CA 94119. Information on what to include in your borrower defense submission is provided below.

If you have already submitted a claim for borrower defense before June 4, you do not need to resubmit. Your loans will be placed in forbearance, collections will cease on your defaulted loans, and you will be contacted by a Department of Education servicer with further information.

In their Borrower Defense to Repayment submission materials, the borrower should include at a minimum:

- A statement that the borrower wishes to assert a borrower defense to repayment based on State law;
- First, Middle and Last Name:
- Date of Birth;
- The last 4 digits of the borrower's Social Security Number;
- Home Address:
- Telephone Number;
- Email Address;
- Name and location of the school;
- The program of study;

- Degree, certificate, or other credential attained or sought;
- Dates of enrollment;
- Documentation to confirm the borrower's school, program of study, and dates of enrollment. Suggested items include transcripts and registration documents indicating your specific program of study and dates of enrollment;
- Any details about the conduct of the school that the borrower believes violated State law including, but not limited to:
 - o The State and applicable law or cause of action (if available);
 - Specific acts (including failures to act) of alleged misconduct by the school;
 - o How the alleged misconduct affected the borrower's decision to attend the school and take out a loan to pay to attend the school;
 - o The injury suffered by the borrower as a result of the school's alleged misconduct;
 - o Any other supporting information that would help the Department of Education review the borrower's claim.

FORBEARANCE AND STOPPED COLLECTIONS

After receiving your submission, the Department of Education will place all of your federal loans in forbearance, and collections on any federal loans in default will stop, while your claim is reviewed by the Department of Education. Loans will be placed in forbearance for up to 12 months, though the Department expects to resolve claims before that time lapses.

During any period that your loans are in forbearance, you do not have to make payments on those loans, and the loans will not go into default. If your loans are already in default, collections will stop. This will continue until the loan discharge review process is completed. Your servicer will notify you when your loan has been placed into forbearance or stopped collections. Until you receive that notice, you should continue to make payments.

The forbearance or stopped collections will affect all of a borrower's federal loans, including loans that are not eligible for a borrower defense to repayment loan discharge, such as loans taken out to attend a different institution than the one related to your claim. Note that interest will continue to accrue on all of these federal loans, including subsidized loans, during the forbearance or stopped collections period.

If you want the forbearance or stopped collections to apply only to those loans related to your borrower defense claim, or if you do not want your loans to continue in forbearance or stopped collections, you must notify your loan servicer after you hear from them confirming the forbearance or stopped collection. At any time during the forbearance or stopped collections period, you may voluntarily make payments on your loans, including payments for accrued interest, or end the forbearance or stopped collections by contacting your servicer.

If your claim is successful, your federal loans related to your claim will be discharged. Also at that time, the forbearance or stopped collections period for your other federal loans will end. You will be responsible for repaying these other loans, including interest that accrued during the forbearance or stopped collections period, under the terms of your promissory note.

If your claim is denied, you will not receive a discharge of any of your loans and the forbearance or stopped collections period will end for all of your loans. You will be responsible for repaying these loans, including interest that accrued during the forbearance or stopped collections period, under the terms of your promissory note.
