SERMO looks to avoid terminated surveys due to screen outs or quota full as much as we can, however it is not always possible. Typically our studies begin with initial questions to determine which group a respondent falls into. At which point, it is possible that the survey will terminate because the respondent does not fall into a group that is being targeted or because the required number of completed surveys has already been met.

Our studies are scientifically designed to ensure that we accurately record the thoughts and opinions of carefully selected groups of respondents. The results of our studies are for analytical purposes only and your confidentiality will be strictly maintained. Our research is treated in accordance with Esomar and MRS Code of Conduct.
