The USDA/1890 National Scholars Program is an annual recruiting effort by the USDA/1890 National Program Office and the participating nineteen 1890 Land-Grant Universities. This human capital initiative is a collective effort geared toward attracting graduating high school seniors and currently enrolled college students, who are rising sophomores or juniors, into pursuing disciplines in agriculture, natural resources, and related sciences at any of the 1890 Land-grant Universities.

The USDA/1890 National Scholars Program offers scholarships to U.S. citizens who are seeking a bachelor's degree at one of the nineteen 1890 Historically Black Land Grant Universities. National Scholars are required to study in the following or related disciplines: Agriculture, Agricultural Business/Management, Agricultural Economics, Agricultural/Civil/Mechanical Engineering, Agricultural Production and Technology, Agronomy or Crop Science, Animal Sciences, and Botany.

Each USDA/1890 National Scholars Program applicant is required to submit a hard copy of the USDA/1890 National Scholars Program Application Form to the USDA/1890 Program Liaison assigned to the 1890 Land-Grant University to which they want to apply.

High School Applicants are required to submit biographical information; educational background information; and extracurricular activities. The applicant's guidance counselor provides information on the student's academic status, grade point average, and test scores. A former or present teacher of the applicant provides information that assesses the applicant's interests, habits, and potential.

College Applicants are required to submit biographical information; educational background information; extracurricular activities; and an essay. Two letters of recommendation are required by a Department Head, Dean of a College or one of the University Vice President and a College Professor, however, there are no sections included in the application that these individuals will need to complete.

The collection of this information from all applicants is necessary to appropriately assess them based on their academic background, extracurricular activities and interests, and potential performance and completion of the USDA/1890 National Scholars Program. This information is shared with all reviewing officials at each step of the Scholar Selection process. Reviewing officials include, but are not limited to, University Professors, Deans, and Vice Presidents; Agency Administrators, Program Directors, and Agency Coordinators; and the USDA/1890 National Office Personnel.
