COLONDOC

We would like to ask you some specific questions about your experiences with colorectal cancer screening

There are several kinds of tests to check for colon and rectal cancer. Colonoscopy and sigmoidoscopy are exams in which a doctor inserts a tube into the rectum to look for polyps for cancer. For a colonoscopy the doctor checks the entire colon, and you are given a medication through a needle in your arm to make you sleepy, and told to have someone drive you home. For a sigmoidoscopy, the doctor checks only part of the colon and you are fully awake.

Another type of test to check for colorectal cancer – the blood stool test, or fecal immunochemical or FIT test – determines whether you have blood in your stool or bowel movement. These tests can be done at home using a kit. You use a stick or brush to obtain a small amount of stool at home and send it back to the doctor or lab.

Have you and your doctor or other health professional ever discussed getting a test to check for colon cancer?

FITTEST

The following questions are about another type of test to check for colon cancer - the blood stool test, or fecal immunochemical or FIT test. Recall that these tests determine whether you have blood in your stool or bowel movement. These tests can be done at home using a kit. You use a stick or brush to obtain a small amount of stool at home and send it back to the doctor or lab.

Have you EVER had a blood stool or FIT test, using a HOME kit? Do not include kits done at the doctor's office.
