In a few days, you will receive a letter inviting you to participate in the Consumer Expenditure Diary Survey.

The Consumer Expenditure Survey collects information on spending for housing, groceries, health care, transportation, and more. These data are used to help compute the Consumer Price Index, a key measure of the health of the U.S. economy, and in studies of household spending.

For more information, visit <https://www.census.gov/programs-surveys/are-you-in-a-survey.html>.

We will be enclosing a small monetary token of appreciation with the letter as a way of saying thank you.

Your cooperation makes a difference!
