

Subject: NCI Invitation for RTIPs Input

Dear Colleague,

The National Cancer Institute (NCI) is redesigning the Research-Tested Intervention Programs (RTIPs) website and seeking practitioner feedback. Although this website has been a valued resource in the cancer control community for the past 16 years, a recent evaluation report suggested that practitioners wanted readily accessible information about how existing interventions could fit their context. Using insight from practitioner interviews, we have redesigned the site and will now proceed with usability testing.

The usability test (approximately 60 minutes) will occur remotely and involve sharing your screen while viewing clickable wireframes of the site on your computer. A moderator will ask you questions and to complete tasks on the site.

Your input is valuable to the redesign of this resource. If you are willing to take part in a usability test, please reply to this email request by xxxx and a member of our team will be in touch to schedule a time at your convenience.

Many thanks for your help with this effort.

Sincerely,

Cynthia A. Vinson, PhD, MPA

Senior Advisor for Implementation Science

Implementation Science Team

Division of Cancer Control and Population Sciences

National Cancer Institute

Office: 240-276-6745

cvinson@mail.nih.gov

Follow Us on Twitter!