Comment Summary:

The availability of data: They are easily understandable and take but a very little time to complete after one has filled them out on previous occasion.

The frequency of information that is collected: We annually require our logging contractors to execute a certification regarding debarment, suspension, ineligibility and voluntary exclusion lower tier covered transactions. We keep these on file.

Clarity of instructions and record keeping responsibilities, disclosure, or reporting form: I have not found either of these forms to be onerous or particularly burdensome to fill out. They are easily understandable and take but a very little time to complete after one has filled them out on previous occasion.

The data elements to be recorded, disclosed, or reported:

Applicable information concerning the estimated burden associated with the collection in terms of both time (burden hours) and costs (i.e., dollars spent (wage rates and applicable fringe benefits such as paid leave, insurance, and retirement) imposed by the information collection. I reviewed AD-1047 and AD-1048. We support the use of these forms in order to keep unscrupulous persons/businesses out of contention for Forest Service timber contracts. Our company is still small enough that we would easily be aware if anyone had been charged or convicted of a criminal or civil offense. You would think that larger firms would still have a very good handle on their employees sufficient to answer the questions with accuracy. Noting they both expire at the end of the year I would advocate they be reissued and used without significant modification.
