Instructions to Focus Group Moderators

The purpose of this guide is to help the moderators gather data during focus groups with APS caseworkers. APS “caseworkers” include those who are involved with investigations of elder maltreatment and the provision of supports and services to APS clients. They may not include caseworkers who additionally provide supervision, management, or other forms of oversight to fellow caseworkers.

Each participant will provide informed consent before each focus group. These focus groups are one data source in the larger APS client outcomes study designed to address the following research questions:

- I. Satisfaction. What changes do clients report as a result of receiving APS services? How satisfied are clients with the APS services they receive? To what extent do clients report APS helps them achieve their goals? To what extent do clients report APS supports their right to self-determination?
- II. Safety/Risk. To what extent do APS programs affect client risk of maltreatment? How do APS programs intervene to reduce risk of maltreatment (or increase safety)? What factors help or hinder APS efforts to reduce client risk of maltreatment?
- III. Well-Being. To what extent do APS programs affect client well-being (e.g., quality of life, financial, physical health, etc.)? How do APS programs intervene to improve client well-being? What factors help or hinder APS efforts to improve client well-being?

The APS caseworker focus groups will be semi-structured. The information gathered from these discussions will be used to better understand the needs and experiences of both APS workers and their clients. Throughout the focus group session, moderators will refer to the guide for discussion topics and questions. However, moderators should recognize valuable diversions and allow important discussion to continue even if it is not included in the guide. Throughout the interview, interviewers should summarize/reflect key points with caseworker participants to confirm understanding.

During focus groups, the moderators will document key themes and salient findings using Table 1, provided at the end of the focus group guide. Space is also provided to record other topics discussed and to list any documents received from APS Caseworkers. The moderators should use the completed tables during a debrief meeting immediately following each focus group to address questions and clarifications, agree on key themes and salient findings, and discuss any differences of opinion and interpretation of the participant responses.

Part I. Information Sheet

Introduction

My name is [insert name of moderator] and this is [insert name of support staff]. We work for a company called New Editions Consulting, located in Falls Church, Virginia. We were hired by the Administration for Community Living, which is an agency within the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, to conduct a national study titled 'Adult Protective Services (or APS) Client Outcome Study'. We will explain the study to you and invite you to be part of it.

Taking part in this study is entirely voluntary. We urge you discuss any questions about this study and your participation with us. If you decide to participate, you must sign the consent form to show that you want to take part.

Purpose of the Study

As you know, APS is an important social services program to help older adults and adults with disabilities who have experienced abuse, neglect, self-neglect, or financial exploitation. At this time, we know little about the impact of APS on the lives of the individuals they assist, or APS clients. Thus, we want to learn more about APS programs, client's experiences using APS, and the impact APS has on clients' lives. The purpose of our conversation today is to understand your experiences providing APS and your opinions about the impact of those services on clients. Your insights and feedback will be used by federal personnel to consider ways to support and improve APS programs.

Procedures and Duration

We are conducting focus groups with APS caseworkers like yourself in 4 states, and 3 counties in each of those states, including yours. Our goal is to complete 12 focus groups with a total of approximately 84 APS caseworkers. The focus group today will take approximately 90 minutes and we will ask your opinion, insights and feedback about APS and how it affects clients. The questions will focus on your role within APS, the services and supports your program provides, and the difference APS makes for clients' lives.

This focus groups will be digitally recorded. The recording will be used as a reference for the study team only to ensure accuracy in reporting. Recordings will not be shared outside of the research team and will be erased once the study report is developed.

Voluntary Participation

Your participation is completely voluntary. You are welcome to share whatever information you are comfortable sharing. You may choose to answer some questions and not to answer other questions for any reason. You may exit the focus group at any time for any reason.

Risks and Benefits

The risks of participating in this focus groups are minimal. As noted, you may exit the focus group at any time for any reason. You will receive a $30 gift card as a thank you for your time [Skip for sites where gift card incentive does not apply – e.g., where caseworker union rules prohibit this kind of compensation]. There will be no other direct benefits to you for participating in the focus group. However, the information you share might benefit APS programs and future clients.

Privacy

Your focus group record will not have any information that identifies you (e.g., name, Social Security Number) and will be reviewed, stored, and analyzed on a secure server at New Editions Consulting. Only staff involved in this study will have access to the record. Your responses will be considered along with all the other participants. You will not be identified in public reports and nothing you say will be personally attributed to you or your APS program. The evaluation team will not share anything you say with anyone outside the evaluation team. Participants will be advised not to share anything they heard from other participants with other staff in their programs. Your signed consent form will be kept separate from your focus group record.

Study Funding

This study is funded by the Administration for Community Living, Department of Health and Human Services.
