This home HIV test kit has been distributed as part of a research study funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC). On the following web pages, we will provide you with some help on how to use the HIV test kit, and ask you to provide some anonymous information as part of the study.

If participant clicks for more information, display:

The Emory University Rollins School of Public Health is doing a research study of home HIV testing. This study is to find out if men who were recruited from the Internet will test for HIV at home and if they will give test kits to people they know. What we learn will help create better HIV prevention programs for our community.

Thank you for taking the time to complete this survey! By continuing and using this website to answer questions about yourself and your previous testing experience, you are agreeing to be part of a research study.

If you have any questions, problems with using the tests, or if you test positive, you can call this toll-free study support number 24 hours a day, 7 days a week: 1-800-628-9240. If you have any questions or comments, you may contact study staff at iSTAMP@emory.edu or (404) 727-4340, or the Principal Investigator, Dr. Patrick Sullivan of Emory University, at (404) 727-2038 or pssulli@emory.edu.

Questions marked with a red asterisk (*) are required questions that you must answer to move forward. You may choose to not answer any questions that make you feel uncomfortable. Your answers are private: the information you provide us will be kept secure and known only to study staff. This information will not be shared or used for any other research purposes.

This survey will ask questions about the recent study HIV self-tests that you have completed. If you have already reported some of the test results on a previous survey, please answer questions only relating to tests you have not already reported.

If you have any questions or feel you have been harmed in this study please contact a member of the research team:
