SURPLUS FEDERAL REAL PROPERTY PUBLIC BENEFIT CONVEYANCE (PBC) AND BASE REALIGNMENT AND CLOSURE (BRAC) PROGRAMS

BACKGROUND

Excess Federal Real property is defined as property that is no longer mission critical to the needs of the Federal government. The conveyance and disposal of excess real property is governed by the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (Property Act) as amended, 40 U.S.C. 541, et. seq., and applicable regulations (Title 40 U.S.C. 553 and 41 CFR parts 102-75.750 through 102-75.815). Under the sponsorship of Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the Act gives the Administrator of the General Services Administration (GSA) authority to convey Federal real and related personal property (without monetary consideration) to units of State and local government for emergency management response purposes, including fire and rescue services.

PBC - GSA and other Federal and local government land holding agencies are tasked with regularly surveying government-owned properties to determine if properties are being fully utilized, under utilized, or not put to best use. GSA reviews the resulting reports and makes a determination as to the availability of these properties. If available, GSA categorizes them as excess and the properties are offered to other Federal government agencies for acquisition*. If no other Federal agency expresses an interest in the excess properties, the properties are then deemed surplus and are offered to State and local government agencies for acquisition via negotiated sale or through the vehicle known as public benefit conveyance (PBC). GSA will determine the appropriate program for which the properties are best suited and will inform the proper sponsoring agency of availabilities. GSA is responsible for enforcing compliance with the terms and conditions of disposals of property to be used for emergency management response purposes.

BRAC - Under the Department of Defense Base Realignment And Closure (BRAC) Act of 1990, PBC sponsoring agencies, such as FEMA, work under the auspices of the Office of Economic Adjustment (OEA) and in conjunction with Local Redevelopment Authorities (LRA) to efficiently utilize military base locations that have been approved for public use*. The LRA is responsible for developing a reuse plan that appropriately balances the needs of the various communities affected by these modifications. OEA manages and directs the Defense Economic Adjustment Program and coordinates the involvement of other federal agencies and Local Redevelopment Authorities in assisting communities that may be adversely impacted by such program changes. While GSA assumes primary administration responsibilities for BRAC properties, final disposition rests solely with DoD.

FEMA

FEMA reviews all applications to make recommendations to the GSA Administrator or the Secretary for Defense, as to whether: (1) the use proposed by the state or unit of local government meets the requirements of the statute; and/or (2) the environmental impact of the proposed transfer has been properly assessed under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA).

FEMA is also responsible for providing interested parties with an application kit, which requests relevant information so that FEMA can determine if the proposed use is appropriate and in compliance with applicable Federal laws.

In 1987, Congress enacted the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act. Title V of this Act made serving the homeless the first priority for use of all surplus Federal properties, including military installations. The Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) reviews all LRA plans to determine compliance with the statute.*

DISCLAIMER

Please note under 40 U.S.C. 533, the GSA Administrator and/or the Secretary for Defense has final approval authority with respect to any and all surplus property conveyances.

ELIGIBILITY

States, the District of Columbia, the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico, Guam, American Samoa, the Virgin Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia, the Marshall Islands, Palau, and the Northern Mariana Islands, or any political subdivision or instrumentality thereof, may authorize applications for conveyance of surplus real property for correctional use or law enforcement purposes.

STIPULATIONS AND COMPLIANCE

The deed of conveyance for each and every Program surplus property, stipulates that all of the subject property must always be used and maintained for the purpose(s) set forth in the Program application. Periodic inspections of properties will be made by GSA and FEMA to ensure continuing compliance with the terms and conditions of the conveyance. Recipients can suffer hardship and financial loss when properties revert back to Federal ownership for noncompliance. For example, if a facility is constructed on property conveyed for Federal emergency management response use, and is later found, instead, as being used for mental health facility purposes, the recipient would be deemed in non-compliance and the property would be subject to reversion to the Federal Government. Recipients must coordinate any proposed deviation, however minor, with FEMA and GSA. Recipients must also file an annual self-certification with their respective regional GSA representatives stating that their current program of use is consistent with those identified in the application.

NON-DISCRIMINATION CLAUSE

Section 102-75.360: The Grantee covenants for itself, its heirs, successors, and assigns and every successor in interest to the property hereby conveyed, or any part thereof, that the said Grantee and such heirs, successors, and assigns shall not discriminate upon the basis of race, creed, color, religion, sex, disability, age, or national origin in the use, occupancy, sale, or lease of the property, or in their employment practices conducted thereon.

INTERGOVERNMENTAL REVIEW OF FEDERAL PROGRAMS

To foster intergovernmental partnerships between the States and their local governments, your intent to apply for excess Federal property must be communicated to your State's Single Point of Contact (SPOC) for review as per Executive Order 12372:
