Overview

The Impact Evaluation of Comprehensive Literacy State Development Grants (CLSD Study) is a U.S. Department of Education-funded study being conducted by American Institutes for Research (AIR). This study evaluates the effectiveness of a federal grant program in which money was awarded to states to support district efforts to implement comprehensive literacy instruction at all levels, from preschool through grade 12. The CLSD Study includes a randomized controlled trial (RCT) designed to estimate the effect of the CLSD grant program on student reading achievement.
