

Instructions for Application for Permission to Re-apply for Admission Into the United States After Deportation or Removal

Department of Homeland Security
U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services

USCIS
Form I-212
OMB No. 1615-0018
Expires 04/30/2020

What Is the Purpose of Form I-212?

If you are inadmissible under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA) section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C), you must ask for consent to reapply for admission to the United States (consent to reapply) before you can lawfully return to the United States. Consent to reapply is also called “permission to reapply.” You should use this application to seek consent to reapply.

Why Do I Need Consent to Reapply?

If you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C), you need to obtain consent to reapply for admission to the United States under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(iii) or (C)(ii). If you need to obtain consent to reapply, it is very important that you do not return to the United States before you have filed an application for consent to reapply, and before the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has approved it.

Returning unlawfully to the United States without inspection and admission or parole, or without obtaining consent to reapply for admission after having been excluded, deported, or removed, OR after having accrued, in the aggregate, more than one year of unlawful presence in the United States may make you permanently inadmissible to the United States under INA section 212(a)(9)(C).

Additionally, returning to the United States without obtaining consent to reapply when needed or returning unlawfully (such as returning without being inspected and admitted, or by fraud, or any other unlawful means after you have been excluded, deported, or removed) may have significant consequences, including:

1. Reinstatement of your removal order under INA section 241(a)(5);
2. Prosecution in criminal court under INA section 276; and
3. A permanent bar from admission to the United States under INA section 212(a)(9)(C).

Returning to the United States with a visa may not protect you from these consequences if you are required to obtain consent to reapply, but did not get that consent.

These Instructions contain more information about the grounds of inadmissibility and the consequences for failure to obtain consent to reapply in the Detailed Description of Grounds of Inadmissibility Under INA Sections 212(a)(9)(A) and (C), and Criminal Penalties Under INA Section 276 section of these Instructions.

Who Should File This Application?

You should file this application if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C). To determine if one or both of these grounds of inadmissibility apply to you, read below in Detailed Descriptions of Grounds of Inadmissibility Under INA Sections 212(a)(9)(A) and (C) and Criminal Penalties Under INA Section 276.

Please be aware that any departure from the United States may make you inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C). Traveling abroad with an Advance Parole Document is a departure for purposes of INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C).

Inadmissibility Under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)

You will need to file Form I-212 if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) because:

1. You either:
 - A. Were actually removed from the United States; or
 - B. Departed the United States on your own after being issued an order of removal (whether administratively final or not); and
2. You seek admission or adjustment of status:
 - A. At any time, if you have been convicted of an aggravated felony; or
 - B. Before you have been outside the United States for a continuous period of:
 - (1) 5 years, if you were removed as an arriving alien, but only once;
 - (2) 10 years, if you were removed other than as an arriving alien, but only once; or
 - (3) 20 years, if you were removed more than once, whether as an arriving alien or not.

You may file Form I-212 if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A), but not INA section 212(a)(9)(C), and you are:

1. An applicant for an immigrant visa;
2. An applicant for adjustment of status under INA section 245 (other than as a T or U nonimmigrant seeking adjustment under Title 8 Code of Federal Regulations (8 CFR) 245.23 or 245.24);
3. An applicant who wishes to seek admission as a nonimmigrant at a U.S. port-of-entry who is not required to obtain a nonimmigrant visa; or
NOTE: U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) has jurisdiction over these applications for consent to reapply. For more information on filing Form I-212 with CBP, consult the CBP website at www.cbp.gov.
4. An applicant for a nonimmigrant visa at a U.S. Consulate.
NOTE: Some applicants who are applying for a nonimmigrant visa may not have to file Form I-212 to obtain consent to reapply for admission. The U.S. Consulate with jurisdiction over your nonimmigrant visa application will advise you on whether and how to file to obtain consent to reapply for admission.

Inadmissibility Under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)

You will need to file Form I-212 if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C) and you are:

1. An applicant for an immigrant visa;
2. An applicant who wishes to seek admission as a nonimmigrant at a U.S. port-of-entry, but who is not required to obtain a nonimmigrant visa; or
NOTE: CBP has jurisdiction over these applications for consent to reapply. For more information on filing Form I-212 with CBP, consult the CBP website at www.cbp.gov.
3. An applicant for a nonimmigrant visa at a U.S. Consulate.
NOTE: Some applicants who are applying for a nonimmigrant visa may not have to file Form I-212 to obtain consent to reapply for admission. The U.S. Consulate with jurisdiction over your nonimmigrant visa application will advise you on whether and how to file to obtain consent to reapply for admission.

Even if you are in one of the categories of applicants listed above, you may not file an application for consent to reapply if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C) and:

1. You are in the United States; or
2. You have not been physically outside the United States for more than 10 years since the date of your last departure from the United States.

Who May Not Be Required to File For Consent to Reapply?

If any of the following apply to you, you may not be inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C), or both, and would not need to seek consent to reapply for admission to the United States:

1. You were inadmissible under INA 212(a)(9)(A), but your inadmissibility period has expired (see the Detailed Descriptions of Grounds of Inadmissibility Under INA Sections 212(a)(9)(A) and (C) and Criminal Penalties Under INA Section 276 section of these Instructions to determine whether one or both of these grounds of inadmissibility apply to you);
2. You were allowed to withdraw your application for admission at the border, and you departed from the United States within the time specified for your departure;
3. You were refused entry at the border, but not formally removed;
4. You were refused admission as an applicant under the Visa Waiver Program;
5. You departed from the United States after having been unlawfully present for a year or more, in the aggregate, but you are not inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(1) because, when returning to the United States through a U.S. port-of-entry, you were paroled into the United States;

NOTE: Even if you were paroled when returning to the United States, after having been unlawfully present for a year or more, in the aggregate, you may still be inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(B). You may be eligible under INA section 212(a)(9)(B)(v) for a waiver of this ground of inadmissibility. For more information on waivers, visit www.uscis.gov/forms and review the instructions for Form I-601 or Form I-601A.

6. You were previously deported from the United States after having been ordered excluded, deported, or removed, but you are not inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(1) because, when returning to the United States through a U.S. port-of-entry, you were paroled into the United States;

NOTE: Even if you were paroled when returning to the United States after having left under an order of exclusion, deportation, or removal, you may still be inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A), as discussed in the Who Should File This Application section of these Instructions.

7. You received an order of voluntary departure from an immigration judge and left the United States during the time period specified in your voluntary departure order;
8. You are an applicant for Registry under INA section 249;
9. You are in U nonimmigrant status and you are applying for adjustment of status under 8 CFR 245.24; or
10. You are an applicant for Temporary Protected Status (TPS) under INA section 244.

NOTE: Although you may be inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C), USCIS cannot consider your inadmissibility under these provisions for purposes of a TPS application because INA section 244(a)(5) states that a TPS applicant's current status may not be considered as part of the adjudication of TPS. Therefore, TPS applicants do not need to file Form I-212 to establish eligibility for TPS. Your inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C), however, may remain relevant and be considered for the purposes of other immigration benefits.

Applicants for certain immigration benefits may be able to obtain a waiver of inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C) instead of consent to reapply for admission. See the Waiver of Inadmissibility Instead of Consent to Reapply section of these Instructions.

Waiver of Inadmissibility Instead of Consent to Reapply

Some applicants do not have to file Form I-212 to overcome their inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) or (C). If you fall under one of the categories listed below, you may apply for a waiver of your grounds of inadmissibility by using the following applications below.

1. Use Form I-601, Application for Waiver of Grounds of Inadmissibility, if:

- A. You are an applicant for adjustment of status under the Nicaraguan Adjustment and Central American Relief Act (NACARA) section 202;
- B. You are an applicant for adjustment of status under the Haitian Refugee Immigration Fairness Act of 1998 (HRIFA) section 902;
- C. You are a T nonimmigrant applying for adjustment of status under 8 CFR 245.23; or
- D. You are an approved Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) self-petitioner seeking adjustment of status who is inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C).

NOTE: If you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(A) and (C), you should file Form I-212 and Form I-601.

2. Use Form I-690, Application for Waiver of Grounds of Inadmissibility, under INA sections 245A or 210 if:

- A. You are an applicant for adjustment of status based on any legalization program under INA section 245A; or
- B. You are an applicant for adjustment of status based on any legalization program under INA section 210 (Special Agricultural Workers).

3. Use Form I-192, Application for Advance Permission to Enter as Nonimmigrant, if:

- A. You are an applicant for U nonimmigrant status. You must file your Form I-192 with your Form I-918, Petition for U Nonimmigrant Status. You do not need to file Form I-212 or a new waiver application if you are already in U nonimmigrant status and applying for adjustment of status under 8 CFR 245.24;
- B. You are an applicant for T nonimmigrant status. You may file Form I-192 with your Form I-914, Application for T Nonimmigrant Status; or
- C. You are an applicant for nonimmigrant status and inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I) for unlawful presence and subsequent reentry without admission or parole. You may be eligible for a waiver of inadmissibility authorizing you to enter as a nonimmigrant under INA section 212(d)(3)(A) at any time and as an alternative to consent to reapply, but only if you wish to seek admission to the United States as a nonimmigrant. This authorization is temporary and does not eliminate the INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I) ground of inadmissibility for immigrant purposes or future entries as a nonimmigrant. See the Instructions for Form I-192 to determine whether and how you may obtain a waiver of a ground of inadmissibility for authorization to enter as a nonimmigrant under INA section 212(d)(3)(A).

When Should You Apply for Consent to Reapply?

If You Are Inadmissible Under INA Section 212(a)(9)(A)

1. If you have already been excluded, deported, or removed from the United States and are currently outside the country, you must seek consent to reapply before returning to the United States.

2. If you have been ordered removed, but have not left the United States, and will be applying for an immigrant visa abroad, you may file your application for consent to reapply before you leave the United States under the removal order. If the agency, at its discretion, chooses to approve your application for consent to reapply, the approval is considered conditional until you actually depart the United States. Consent to reapply for admission in this situation applies only to inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A). You cannot file an application for consent to reapply for admission while you are in the United States if you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C).
3. If you are ordered removed again after approval of consent to reapply, you will have to file a new application for consent to reapply. A conditional approval does not protect you from any other ground of inadmissibility that may result from your departure from the United States, including under INA section 212(a)(9)(B). See the Where To File section of these Instructions to determine whether you qualify for the advanced, conditional approval.

If You Are Inadmissible Under INA Section 212(a)(9)(C)

1. If you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i), you are permanently inadmissible and will always need to request for consent to reapply for admission BEFORE you return to the United States.
2. You cannot file an application for consent to reapply until you have left the United States and have remained outside the country for at least 10 years since your last departure. After 10 years, you must request consent to reapply before you seek admission to the United States.

Detailed Description of Grounds of Inadmissibility Under INA Sections 212(a)(9)(A) and (C) and Criminal Penalties Under INA Section 276

If You Are Inadmissible Under INA Section 212(a)(9)(A)(i)

You must seek consent to reapply if you seek admission to the United States during the period specified in INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(i) and you are inadmissible because:

1. You were removed from the United States as an inadmissible alien through expedited removal proceedings under INA section 235(b)(1) that were initiated when you arrived at a U.S. port-of-entry; or
2. You were removed from the United States as an inadmissible, arriving alien under INA section 240, and the removal proceedings were initiated when you arrived at a U.S. port-of-entry.

The periods of time during which you must obtain consent to reapply for admission before you can apply for admission to the United States again are:

1. 5 years from the date of removal, if you were only removed once;
2. 20 years from the date of removal, if you were removed two or more times; or
3. Forever, if you are an alien who has been convicted of an aggravated felony (as defined in INA section 101(a)(43)). You must obtain consent to reapply for admission, even if you were not removed because of the aggravated felony conviction and even if you were convicted of the aggravated felony after you were removed from the United States.

If you seek admission to the United States before the appropriate inadmissibility period is over, you must file an application for consent to reapply for admission to the United States.

If you do not know the provision of law that was the basis for your exclusion, deportation, or removal from the United States, review the official documents you received during your proceedings. These documents should indicate the section of law that applies to your case.

NOTE: If you have remained outside the United States for the entire inadmissibility period, you are no longer required to seek consent to reapply. Under INA section 276(a)(2)(B), you also will not be subject to criminal liability under INA section 276(a) if you return lawfully to the United States through a U.S. port-of-entry. If you are granted consent to reapply for admission to the United States during the inadmissibility period, your inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(i) no longer applies.

NOTE: Even if the inadmissibility period under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(i) has already passed (you were required to remain abroad for 5 or 20 consecutive years, and have done so, and have not been convicted of an aggravated felony), you will become inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C) if you enter or attempt to enter the United States without being inspected and admitted or paroled.

If You Are Inadmissible Under INA Section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii)

You must obtain consent to reapply if you seek admission to the United States during the period specified in INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) and you are inadmissible because:

1. You were removed from the United States under INA section 240;
2. You were ordered removed under any other provision of U.S. law; or
3. You departed from the United States on your own while an order of exclusion, deportation, or removal was outstanding (for example, you left after you were ordered removed, but before the U.S. Government could physically remove you based on your order of removal). This does not include a voluntary departure granted under INA section 240B if you departed the United States during the time period specified in your voluntary departure order.

The periods during which you must obtain consent to reapply before you can apply for admission to the United States again are:

1. 10 years from the date of departure or removal, if you were only removed once;
2. 20 years from the date of departure or removal, if you were removed two or more times; or
3. Forever, if you were convicted of an aggravated felony (as defined in INA section 101(a)(43)). You must obtain consent to reapply for admission, even if you were not removed because of the aggravated felony conviction and even if you were convicted of the aggravated felony after you were removed from the United States.

NOTE: If you have remained outside of the United States for the entire inadmissibility period, you are no longer required to file this application. Under INA section 276(a)(2)(B), you also will not be subject to criminal liability under INA section 276(a), if you return lawfully to the United States through a U.S. port-of-entry. If you are granted consent to reapply for admission to the United States during the inadmissibility period, your inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) no longer applies.

NOTE: Even if the inadmissibility period under INA section 212(a)(9)(A)(ii) has already passed (you were required to remain abroad for 10 or 20 years, and have done so, and have not been convicted of an aggravated felony), you will become inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C) if you enter or attempt to enter the United States without being inspected and admitted or paroled.

Removal Under Any Provision of U.S. Law

Removal under any provision of U.S. law includes, but is not limited to:

1. An exclusion and deportation order under INA section 236 as it existed prior to April 1, 1997;
2. Arrest and deportation from the United States under any U.S. law prior to April 1, 1997;
3. Removal under INA section 217 for a violation of terms of admission of the Visa Waiver Program;

4. Removal under INA section 235(c) for security and related grounds;
5. Removal as a stowaway under INA section 235(a)(2);
6. Removal under INA section 238(b) after conviction of an aggravated felony;
7. Removal after revocation of the crewmember's landing permit under INA section 252(b); and
8. Removal as an alien in distress under INA section 250.

If you do not know the provision of law that was the basis for your exclusion, deportation, or removal from the United States, review the official documents you received during your proceedings. These documents should indicate the section of law that applies to your case.

If You Are Inadmissible Under INA Section 212(a)(9)(C)

You must seek consent to reapply if, on or after April 1, 1997, you entered or attempted to reenter the United States without being admitted or paroled after:

1. You had been unlawfully present in the United States after April 1, 1997, for a total period of more than one year (INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I)); or
2. You had been ordered removed from the United States under any provision of the INA or any other provision of law before, on, or after April 1, 1997 (INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(H)).

If you are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i), you are permanently inadmissible and will always need to request consent to reapply for admission before you return to the United States. Also, each time you reenter or attempt to reenter the United States without admission or parole, you incur a new inadmissibility under INA section 212(a)(9)(C). You may not obtain consent to reapply for readmission unless you leave the United States and remain outside the country for at least 10 years since your most recent departure.

NOTE: If you intend to seek admission to the United States as a nonimmigrant and are inadmissible under INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I) (unlawful presence for a total of more than one year, in the aggregate, and subsequent reentry without admission or parole), you may be eligible for a waiver of inadmissibility under INA section 212(d)(3)(A) instead of consent to reapply for admission. This authorization is temporary and does not eliminate INA section 212(a)(9)(C)(i)(I) ground of inadmissibility for future immigrant purposes.

Criminal Penalties Under INA Section 276

You may be subject to criminal prosecution and, if convicted, sentenced to prison under INA section 276, if you:

1. Have been denied admission;
2. Were excluded, deported, or removed from the United States; or
3. Have departed the United States while an order of exclusion, deportation, or removal is outstanding;

AND then you:

1. Entered or attempted to enter the United States; or
2. Are found in the United States unlawfully (including without consent to reapply for admission).

Your return to the United States, even with a visa, is unlawful if you were required to obtain consent to reapply for admission, but did not obtain that consent.

Even if the period during which you are required to obtain consent to reapply has expired, you may still be subject to criminal liability under INA section 276. This could happen if you return to the United States unlawfully, without being inspected and admitted or paroled, or if you return by fraud or any other unlawful means.

Biometric Services Appointment

For Applicants Filing Form I-212 with USCIS. Every individual who is an applicant, petitioner, derivative, beneficiary, or sponsor of an immigration benefit request or other request submitted to USCIS is required to submit biometrics unless USCIS waives or exempts the requirement. USCIS currently exempts all Form I-212 applicants from this requirement unless USCIS or the Department of State notifies the applicant that biometrics are required. You will be notified of the time and place of your appointment if you must appear and you will be provided requirements for rescheduling if necessary. If you fail to submit any biometrics as required, USCIS may deny your application, petition, or request.

DHS may store the biometrics submitted by an individual and use or reuse biometrics to conduct background and security checks, including a check of criminal history records maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), verify identity, produce documents, determine eligibility for immigration and naturalization benefits, or to perform any other functions necessary for administering and enforcing immigration and naturalization laws, and any other law within DHS authority.

If you are required to provide biometrics, at your appointment you must sign an oath reaffirming that:

1. You provided or authorized all information in the application;
2. You reviewed and understood all of the information contained in, and submitted with, your application; and
3. All of this information was complete, true, and correct at the time of filing.

Copies. You should submit legible photocopies of documents requested, unless the Instructions specifically state that you must submit an original document. The adjudicating agency may request an original document at the time of filing or at any time during processing of an application, petition, or request. If you submit original documents when not required, the documents may remain a part of the record, and the adjudicating agency will not automatically return them to you.

NOTE: If you submit original documents when not required or requested by USCIS, your original documents may be immediately destroyed upon receipt.

Translations. If you submit a document with information in a foreign language, you must also submit a full English translation. The translator must sign a certification that the English language translation is complete and accurate, and that he or she is competent to translate from the foreign language into English. The certification must include the translator's signature. The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) recommends the certification contain the translator's printed name and the date and the translator's contact information.

What Is the Filing Fee?

The filing fee for Form I-212 is $930. If you receive a notice to appear for a biometric services appointment, you may also be required to pay the $85 biometric services fee.

NOTE: The filing fee is not refundable, regardless of any action USCIS takes on this application. DO NOT MAIL CASH. You must submit all fees in the exact amounts.

Use the following guidelines when you prepare your check or money order for the Form I-212 filing fee:

1. The check or money order must be drawn on a bank or other financial institution located in the United States and must be payable in U.S. currency; and
2. Make the check or money order payable to U.S. Department of Homeland Security.

3. If you live outside the United States, contact the nearest U.S. Embassy or U.S. Consulate for instructions on the method of payment.

Notice to Those Making Payment by Check. If you send us a check, USCIS will convert it into an electronic funds transfer (EFT). This means we will copy your check and use the account information on it to electronically debit your account for the amount of the check. The debit from your account will usually take 24 hours and your bank will show it on your regular account statement.

You will not receive your original check back. We will destroy your original check, but will keep a copy of it. If USCIS cannot process the EFT for technical reasons, you authorize us to process the copy in place of your original check. If your check is returned as unpayable, USCIS will re-submit the payment to the financial institution one time. If the check is returned as unpayable a second time, we will reject your application and charge you a returned check fee.
