TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION:

NIMH Information Resource Center (IRC) Customer Satisfaction Surveys for Email Information Services and Online Publications Ordering Services

PURPOSE:

The National Institute of Mental Health (NIMH) Information Resource Center (IRC) wishes to gauge customer satisfaction with its email information and referral service and online publication ordering service. NIMH also hopes to receive feedback about the educational materials and resources it provides through its online publications catalog. Respondents have the option to participate in a survey by clicking on a survey link located at the end of an IRC email response or clicking on a link provided on its online publications catalog at the end of their online ordering session. The information gathered will help NIMH identify the strengths and weaknesses of its current services and guide improvements in service delivery based on customer feedback.

The email and online publication ordering service surveys ask customers to complete up to six open- and closed-ended questions, using a Likert scale or categorical response options, to gain feedback on the helpfulness and overall satisfaction with the information services and educational resources. Several close-ended questions include additional open text fields for respondents to explain their answers. NIMH also asks customers to provide suggestions for improving the services.

Every six months, NIMH’s contractor will analyze and summarize survey findings and provide NIMH with actionable recommendations. Survey findings will inform updates and enhancements to NIMH’s IRC and educational resources, and ultimately ensure NIMH serves its audiences' information needs.

DESCRIPTION OF RESPONDENTS:

Respondents comprise individuals who send email inquiries to nimhinfo@nih.gov and voluntarily click on the survey link in their email response and individuals who visit the NIMH IRC to order publications via the online catalog and voluntarily click on the provided survey link.

NIMH assumes a 2% response rate for the email services web survey based on historical trends in responses. NIMH assumes a 14% response rate for the online publication services survey based on historical trends in responses.
