TITLE OF INFORMATION COLLECTION:

Office of Intramural Training & Education (OITE) – How to Teach and Advise on Career Development Topics for the Next Generation of Biomedical Scientists: A Train-the-Trainers Event

PURPOSE:

The NIH Office of Intramural Training & Education (OITE), in collaboration with the AAMC GREAT Group, is hosting a “Train-the-Trainers” Event. This event is designed to provide information to advisors, staff, and faculty who provide career and professional development programming and guidance to graduate students and postdoctoral researchers in the biomedical sciences. Participants will discuss items such as:

- Career Advising: improve your career consultations using theories and practices from career counseling
- Conflict and Feedback: understand conflict theories and feedback methods that you can use to develop your own presentations to deliver at your institution
- Diversity: improve the discussion of diversity in the biomedical community
- Communication: build advising skills to address common challenges our trainees face such as stress, anxiety, depression, stereotype threat, imposter phenomenon, and more
- What works? A sharing session to see how other institutions have implemented concepts learned in 2016

At the close of the event, the OITE wishes ask participants to provide feedback on the Overall Quality of the Sessions, as well as the specific sessions:

- Career Advising
- Personal Development Workshops
- Conflict / Team / Leadership
- Novel Approaches in Graduate Training & Professional Development
- Resilience 201
- Practice Sessions
- Talking About Diversity in a Scientific Environment
- Overall Impression of the Train-the-Trainers Event
