The collection of your Social Security Number (SSN)/Individual Taxpayer Identification Number (ITIN) is authorized by the Internal Revenue Code (26 U.S.C. 6109).

Purposes: ICE is collecting your information, including your SSN/ITIN for two reasons: First, ICE will verify your identity before you board an ICE-chartered aircraft to assess the safety of the aircraft, its crew, other passengers, and the United States. Further, your data collected on the form is also used in the event of an emergency to help ensure timely notification of points of contact designated by the passenger. Second, information will be used to confirm your agreement to be billed for Space Available travel, and for billing and collection purposes.

Agency Disclosure of Information: For United States Citizens, Lawful Permanent Residents, or individuals whose records are covered by the Judicial Redress Act of 2015 (5 U.S.C. § 552a note), your information may be disclosed in accordance with the Privacy Act of 1974, 5 U.S.C. § 552a(b), including pursuant to the routine uses published in the DHS/ALL-008 - Accounts Receivable System of Records, which can be viewed at https://www.dhs.gov/system-records-notices-sorns.

ICE may share your information with Department of State personnel and with other Federal and State law enforcement agencies, and Federal judicial and administrative courts and tribunals, consistent with Federal law and policy. Your information may also be shared with the Department of the Treasury.

Effects of Collection and Disclosure: Providing your information, including your SSN/ITIN is voluntary. However, if you decide not to provide this information, you will not be allowed to board the ICE-chartered aircraft.

Generally, an aircraft used exclusively for the U.S. government may be considered a "public aircraft" as defined in 49 U.S.C. §§ 40102 and 40125, unless it is transporting passengers or operating for commercial purposes. A public aircraft is not subject to many Federal aviation regulations, including requirements related to aircraft certification, maintenance, and pilot certification. If a U.S. government agency transports passengers on a Government aircraft, that agency must comply with all Federal aviation regulations applicable to civil aircraft. If you have questions about the status of a particular flight, you should contact the agency sponsoring the flight. You and your dependents have certain rights and benefits in the unlikely event that you are injured or killed while riding abroad a Government aircraft. Federal employees and some private citizens are eligible for workers' compensation benefits under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act (FECA). When FECA applies, it is the sole remedy. For more information about FECA and its coverage, consult with your agency's benefits office or contact the Branch of Technical Assistance at the Department of Labor's Office of Workers' Compensation Programs. State or foreign laws may provide for product liability or "third party" causes of action for personal injury or wrongful death. If you have questions about a particular case or you believe you have a claim, you should consult with an attorney.

Some insurance policies may exclude coverage for injuries or death sustained while traveling aboard a Government-chartered aircraft while within a combat area. You may wish to check your policy or consult with your insurance provider before your flight. The insurance available to Federal employees through the Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Program does not contain an exclusion of this type. If you are the victim of an air disaster resulting from criminal activity Victim and Witness Specialists from the Federal Bureau of Investigation and/or local U.S. Attorney's Office will keep you or your family informed about the status of the criminal investigation(s) and provide information about rights and services, such as crisis intervention, counseling, and emotional support. State crime victim compensation may be able to cover crime-related expenses, such as medical costs, mental health counseling, funeral and burial costs, and lost wages or loss of support. The Office for Victims of Crimes in the Department of Justice is authorized by the Antiterrorism Act of 1996 to provide emergency financial assistance to state programs, as well as the relevant U.S. Attorney's Office, for the benefit of victims of terrorist acts or mass violence.

If you are a Federal employee, and you are injured or killed on the job during the performance of duty, including travel on a Government-chartered aircraft, you and your family are eligible to collect workers' compensation benefits under FECA. Although you may have a cause of action against potentially liable third parties, you and your family may not file a personal injury or wrongful death suit against the United States or its employees. Further, a choice must normally be made between FECA disability or death benefits, and those payable under your retirement system. You may choose the benefit that is more favorable to you.

If you are a private citizen not employed by the Federal government, but you are rendering personal service to the Federal government on a voluntary basis or for nominal pay, you may be defined as a Federal employee for purposes of FECA. If so, you and your family would be eligible to receive workers' compensation benefits under FECA, but you may not collect in a personal injury or wrongful death lawsuit against the United States or its employees. You and your family could still file suit against potentially liable third parties. Before you depart on a Government-chartered flight, you may wish to consult with the agency sponsoring the flight to clarify whether you are considered a Federal employee. If you are not determined to be a Federal employee, you and your family are not eligible to receive workers' compensation benefits under FECA. If you are traveling for business purposes, you may be eligible for workers' compensation under state law.

If the accident occurs within the United States or its territories, or within U.S. airspace, or over the high seas, you and your family may claim against the United States under the Federal Tort Claims Act or the Suits in Admiralty Act.
