Purpose: To create a probability-based database of service members and veterans who have, or have not, deployed overseas so that various longitudinal health and research studies may be conducted over a 67-year period. The database will be used: (a.) To systematically collect population-based demographic and health data to evaluate the health of Armed Forces personnel throughout their careers and after leaving the service. (b.) To evaluate the impact of operational deployments on various measures of health over time including medically unexplained symptoms and chronic diseases to include cancer, heart disease and diabetes. (c.) To serve as a foundation upon which other routinely captured medical and deployment data may be added to answer future questions regarding the health risks of operational deployment, occupations, and general service in the Armed Forces. (d.) To examine characteristics of service in the Armed Forces associated with common clinician-diagnosed diseases and with scores on several standardized self-reported health inventories for physical and psychological functional status. (e.) To provide a data repository and available representative Armed Forces cohort that future investigators and policy makers might use to study important aspects of service in the Armed Forces including disease outcomes among an Armed Forces cohort.

In addition to revealing changes in service member and veteran health status over time, the Millennium Cohort Study will serve as a data repository, providing a solid foundation upon which additional epidemiological studies may be constructed.

Routine Uses: The information provided in this questionnaire will be maintained in data files at the Deployment Health Research Department at the Naval Health Research Center and used only for medical research purposes. Use of these data may be granted to other federal and non-federal medical research agencies as approved by the Naval Health Research Center's Institutional Review Board. To the Social Security Administration (SSA) for considering individual claims for benefits for which that SSA is responsible. The DoD 'Blanket Routine Uses' that appear at the beginning of the Navy's compilation of systems of records notices apply to this system.

NOTE: This system of records contains individually identifiable health information. Based on child's age, relationship to participant, and relationship to spouse, a focal child will be randomly selected from among the participant's own biological/adopted children AND spouse's biological/adopted children. If child's relationship is not biological/adopted for both parties, or if no child age is provided, participant skips the rest of this section.

The next questions will just focus on your XX-year-old child. If you decide to participate in future surveys, we will continue to ask about this child so we can observe how children change and grow over time. To help make it easier to recall this child in future surveys, please provide a "name code" for your XX-year-old child. This should be a code constructed from the second and third letters of your child's given first name and their birth year. For example, if your child's name is Robert and he was born in 2005, the second and third letters would be "OB" and his birth year would be 2005. Note that this information will only be used to help you remember which child was chosen today, and will not be used by the research team or the DoD for any other purpose.

Special option: For same-gender twins/children born in the same year (based on age, gender, relationship to participant, and relationship to spouse), if one of these children is picked as the focal child, replace the first sentence with: The next questions will focus on one of your two XX-year-old's.

Please choose only one of these children for these next questions. And add after the last sentence:

If your two children have the same name code (same second and third letters in their first name and same birth year), then please think of the first born/older of the two children in your responses below.
