To another department or agency of the United States in need of temporary short-term foreign language services, where government employees are required or desired. Additional routine uses are listed in the applicable System of Records Notice, DHRA 07, National Language Service Corps (NLSC) Records at: <https://dpcl.dod.mil/Portals/49/Documents/Privacy/SORNs/OSDJS/DHRA-07.pdf>

DISCLOSURE: Voluntary; however, failure to provide information may result in non-enrollment in the NLSC and refusal to grant access to member areas of the NLSC portal.

SECTION 1 LISTENING

LANGUAGE: _____

INSTRUCTIONS: Read and consider the following nine descriptions of listening proficiency. Afterwards, decide which description most accurately represents your overall listening proficiency in the language named above.

I can understand when others talk about basic survival needs. I engage in simple conversations, but I often misunderstand.

I understand travel-related information if the speaker is clear and slow.

I can understand face-to-face speech about everyday topics in standard pronunciation spoken at a normal pace.

I can understand descriptions of different places and discussions about past, current, and future events. I do not grasp deeper or hidden meanings or implications expressed in more complex language.

I can understand the essentials of all speech in standard pronunciation, including discussions within my field of interest or specialization.

I can infer meanings that are not directly stated. I have some difficulty understanding native speakers if they speak very quickly, change dialects, or use slang.

I can understand all forms and styles of speech pertinent to my social and professional needs. I may experience some difficulty understanding if I am listening in unfavorable conditions.

I can readily infer meanings and implications. I understand social conversations, radio broadcasts, and phone calls. I have little difficulty understanding speech even in unfavorable conditions.

My comprehension of the language is fully equivalent to that of a well-educated, native speaker.

SECTION 4 WRITING

LANGUAGE: _____

INSTRUCTIONS: Read and consider the following nine descriptions of writing proficiency. Afterwards, decide which description most accurately represents your overall writing proficiency in the language named above.

I can handle limited everyday needs by writing simple statements and questions on very familiar topics.

My vocabulary is very limited, and I make a lot of grammatical errors, but someone used to non-native writing can understand my ideas.

I can handle routine social correspondence and write basic documentation that addresses most limited work requirements.

I can control most common formats and punctuation conventions, and people usually understand what I write, even if they are not accustomed to non-native writing.

I can produce effective writing in most formal and informal exchanges on practical, social, and professional topics (reports, summaries, reach papers, etc.).

I can use complex sentences appropriately, and I am proficient in most common grammatical structures. I can connect different ideas clearly.

I can produce a variety of prose for professional and educational needs. I am comfortable with grammar and writing conventions and can write tailored material for particular audiences with the ability to express subtleties and nuances.

I can produce clear, well-organized prose using a variety of literary patterns and devices, such as ellipses, parallelisms, subordination, etc.

My writing proficiency is equal to that of a well-educated native.
