Dear Beneficiary First Name Beneficiary Last Name,

You are receiving this letter because you enrolled in the Social Security Administration's Promoting Opportunity Demonstration (POD) in POD_RA_MONTHANDYEAR. Each year, the Social Security Administration compares the amount of SSDI benefits paid to beneficiaries the previous year to the amount of benefits that should have been paid, based on beneficiaries' actual earnings for that year. While your participation in POD ended on June 30, 2021, the Social Security Administration needs information from you to ensure that your SSDI benefits were paid correctly for the months in 2021 when you were enrolled in POD.

Who Needs to Respond to this Letter?

This letter applies to you if you earned more than the $940 POD monthly threshold for at least one month in 2021. If this letter applies to you, review the attached table on page 4 listing your reported earnings and Impairment Related Work Expenses (IRWEs) and follow the instructions below to help ensure that SSA paid your benefits correctly in 2021. You do not need to respond if you did not earn more the $940 POD monthly threshold in any month in 2021.

What do I Need to Submit?

The following steps will help you determine if you need to submit documentation to the POD project. Remember that earnings for a month are based on the date paid, not the date earned.

Step 1: Review Earnings while in POD. Review the amount listed under "Earnings" in the attachment for January 2021 – May 2021. If there were months last year that you did not report your earnings to the POD project, these months are identified in the table with "None submitted". SSA used the earnings you reported for the most recently reported prior month to calculate your benefits for these months.

- Matches: If the amount listed in the table for each month you were in POD equals the sum of what you were paid by each employer for that month, you do not need to submit any additional information. Proceed to Step 3.
- Does not Match: If the monthly amount listed in the table does not equal the amount of what you were paid by all of your employers, submit all of your paystubs for each month that the table lists incorrect earnings. If the table displays "None submitted" you will want to submit documentation for those months to ensure SSA is calculating your benefits correctly. If you are missing paystubs for an employer, submit as many paystubs as you can for the employer. Instructions for how to submit paystubs, along with how to document $0 earnings, are listed in the “How do I Submit Documentation?” section of this letter. Proceed to Step 2.

Step 2: Review IRWEs while in POD. IRWEs include medical expenses or medically-necessary transportation expenses that you pay out-of-pocket and that are required due to a disabling condition. Review the amount listed under “IRWEs” in the attachment for January 2021 – May 2021. When reviewing your IRWE expenses, note that IRWEs should only be submitted for months in POD in which your earnings exceeded $940 and the IRWEs you paid exceeded $940. If you have additional IRWEs to claim, you must submit receipts for these expenses. Instructions for how to submit receipts are listed in the “How do I Submit Documentation?” section of this letter.

Step 3: Review Post-POD Earnings. Your post-POD earnings is the total amount you were paid in 2021 after you were no longer actively participating in POD (June 2021 – December 2021.) Review the amount listed under “Earnings” in the second to last row of the attachment.

- Matches: If the $SECOND TO LAST ROW AMOUNT amount listed in the post-POD period row equals what you were paid from all of your employers during your post-POD period, you do not need to submit any additional information to document post-POD earnings.
- Does not Match: If the $SECOND TO LAST ROW AMOUNT amount listed in the post-POD period row does not match what you were paid from all of your employers during your post-POD period (June 2021 – December 2021), or if no post-POD earnings were submitted, please submit your last paystub paid to you in 2021 for each employer. Instructions for how to submit paystubs are listed in the “How do I Submit Documentation?” section of this letter.
