NOTE: For each center, a FACES study liaison will request from a designated Head Start staff member (typically the on-site coordinator, known as the OSC) a list of all lead teachers providing in-person instruction to Head Start-funded children. Home visitors and teachers who only teach virtually/remotely should not be included on this list of lead teachers. The attached teacher sampling form is an example of the information required for teacher sampling. The liaison will request this information via a secure file sharing website. The liaison will enter the information into a web-based sampling program. For each teacher, the liaison will obtain their first and last name, their email address, and the number of classrooms they have. For each classroom a teacher has, we will also obtain the instruction schedule (AM, PM, or full day), and the primary language of instruction (English, Spanish, or other). The study liaison will enter this information into a web-based sampling program that will include fields that match those on the attached form. The sampling program will randomly select about two teachers per selected center for participation in the study. Then, if the teacher instructs more than one group of children, the sampling program will sub-sample one group for the classroom observation to take place during the data collection visit.
