TO: [PARENT EMAIL ADDRESS]
FROM: AIAN FACES Study Team
SUBJECT: AIAN FACES Study Invitation

Dear [PARENT],

Thank you for taking part in the American Indian and Alaska Native Head Start Family and Child Experiences Survey (AIAN FACES) last fall.

A few things you might remember about the study:

- The study is funded by the Administration for Children and Families, in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- The study focuses on children’s development, family involvement, and program quality to identify strategies for improving Head Start. It is very important because it will help the Office of Head Start (OHS) understand the unique needs of families two years after the COVID-19 pandemic began.
- Mathematica, an independent research firm, is conducting the study. Mathematica has worked with directors of Head Start programs in AIAN communities, the OHS leadership and other federal staff, and child development researchers to make sure the study meets the unique needs of AIAN Head Start programs.

As part of this study, we invite you to complete a spring survey about you, your family, and your child. The survey will take about 35 minutes. After you finish the survey, we will send you a $30 gift card to thank you for your participation. You can complete the survey online or by phone. To complete the survey by phone, or if you need to complete the survey in a language other than English, please call 833-961-2894 toll-free.

We encourage you to complete the survey online at:
[UNIQUE SURVEY LINK]

Please finish the survey as soon as you can. Here are some points to keep in mind:

- Taking part in AIAN FACES is up to you. There is no penalty if you decide not to participate. Taking part in the study, or deciding not to participate, will not affect any Head Start services you or your child receive. There are no risks from taking part in the study.

However, you may be asked a few sensitive questions. You may choose not to answer those questions or any questions.

- Study results will only be reported for groups. Study results will never be reported in a way that identifies you, your child, any other individuals in your family, or your child's Head Start program.
- There are a few short answer questions in this survey. The information you provide as part of these questions may be directly quoted in order to illustrate a point, but no specific names or places (or any other information that could identify an individual, program, or community) that you mention will be used in study reports.
- No one from your Head Start program will see or hear your individual responses, and your name and your program's name will not be shared with the OHS or in any reports. We are, however, required by law to identify participants if they tell us something that suggests that they are very likely to harm themselves, that they are planning to hurt another person or child, or that someone is likely to harm them.
- In the future, survey responses from the study (with nothing identifying individuals, programs, or communities) may be securely shared with qualified individuals for additional learning purposes to better understand the strengths and needs of children and families in AIAN Head Start and the programs that work with them.

If you have questions about AIAN FACES, please call Sara Skidmore, the survey director, at 833-961-2894. This call is toll-free. You can also email us at AIANFACES@mathematica-mpr.com. Dear [TEACHER]:

Thank you for taking part in the American Indian and Alaska Native Head Start Family and Child Experiences Survey (AIAN FACES). This past fall [HEAD START PROGRAM NAME] was selected to take part in this important study.

A few things you might remember about the study:

- In 2015 and again in 2019, AIAN FACES collected descriptive information on children's skills and the experiences of families attending Region XI AIAN Head Start, to help inform policies and practices. The study is being conducted again in 2021-22 to help the Office of Head Start (OHS) understand the unique needs of families two years after the COVID-19 pandemic began.
- The study is funded by the Administration for Children and Families, in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- Mathematica, an independent research firm, is conducting AIAN FACES. Mathematica worked with a group of directors and leaders of Head Start programs in AIAN communities, federal officials, and early childhood researchers with experience with Native communities to design the study and to guide how the study is being carried out.

This spring we are asking you to complete a short form, the Teacher Child Report (TCR), for each child participating in AIAN FACES in your class. The form asks about the skills and approaches to learning that you have seen these children use, as well as behaviors you might have seen. Each form should only take about 10 minutes. As a thank you, we will send you a $10 gift card for each TCR form you complete and return.

In addition to completing the TCRs, we are also asking you to complete a Teacher Survey. It should take about 35 minutes to complete. The survey will ask about children's classroom activities, the materials used in the classroom, Native culture and language experiences that happen in the classroom, and the ways that you involve and interact with children's parents. It will also ask about your feelings, your education and training, and professional development you may have taken part in over the past year. It will also include questions about your well-being two years after the COVID-19 pandemic began.

[DATE]

Dear [PROGRAM DIRECTOR]:

Thank you for taking part in the American Indian and Alaska Native Head Start Family and Child Experiences Survey (AIAN FACES) last fall.

A few things you might remember about the study:

- In 2015 and again in 2019, AIAN FACES collected descriptive information on children's skills and the experiences of families attending Region XI AIAN Head Start, to help inform policies and practices. The study is being conducted again in 2021-22 to help the Office of Head Start (OHS) understand the unique needs of families two years after the COVID-19 pandemic began.
- The study is funded by the Administration for Children and Families, in the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services.
- Mathematica, an independent research firm, is conducting AIAN FACES. Mathematica worked with a group of directors and leaders of Head Start programs in AIAN communities, federal officials, and early childhood researchers with experience with Native communities to design the study and to guide how the study is being carried out.

This spring, we are asking you to complete a Program Director Survey. It should take about 30 minutes to complete. The survey will ask about staff education and training, curriculum and assessment, program management, children and families they partner with, Native culture and language in the program, use of data to make decisions, resources available to your program, support for staff working with families affected by substance use, and your feelings about your job and program. It will also ask about your feelings and well-being two years after the COVID-19 pandemic began, education and training, and professional development you may have taken part in over the past year.

We want you to know that:

- Taking part in AIAN FACES is voluntary. You do not have to take part in this study. If you choose to take part in the study but then decide you want to leave the study at any point, that is okay. There are no risks from taking part in the study. However, you may be asked sensitive questions. You may choose not to answer those questions or any questions.
- Study results will only be reported for groups. No one else from your Head Start program, including your supervisors, will see or hear your individual responses, and your name and your program's name will not be shared with the OHS or in any reports.

- There are a few short answer questions in this survey. The information you provide as part of these questions may be directly quoted in order to illustrate a point, but no specific names or places (or any other information that could identify an individual, program, or community) that you mention will be used in study reports.
- In the future, survey responses from the study (with nothing identifying individuals, programs, or communities) may be securely shared with qualified individuals for additional learning purposes to better understand the strengths and needs of children and families in AIAN Head Start and the programs they work with.
- We have a Certificate of Confidentiality from the National Institutes of Health. The Certificate helps us protect your privacy. This means no one can force the study team to give out information that identifies you, even in court. However, we may need to share your information if it shows a serious threat to you or to others, including reporting to authorities when required by law.
