I-589, Application For Asylum And For Withholding Of Removal

This online form is used to apply for asylum and for withholding of removal.

⚠ Only certain applicants may apply for asylum online with USCIS at this time. Failure to follow applicable instructions may result in rejection of your online application and/or a filing delay.

Please review the following statements and select any that apply to you:

- I am currently in proceedings in immigration court or before the Board of Immigration Appeals. To determine if you should file your Form I-589 with USCIS or the Executive Office for Immigration Review (EOIR), please see the Where to File section of the Form I-589 webpage and the Form I-589 Instructions for more information. If you are unsure whether you are currently in proceedings before EOIR but intend to file a Form I-589 with USCIS, please file a paper Form I-589.
- If you are a child in removal proceedings and are filing as an Unaccompanied Alien Child \(UAC\), your completed paper Form I-589 must be mailed to the Nebraska Service Center. Please review the filing instructions for UACs in the Form I-589 Instructions.
- I am among the categories of applicants who must file by mail with the Asylum Vetting Center as outlined in the Special Instructions section of the Form I-589 webpage.
- I have already submitted a Form I-589 and it is still pending before USCIS.
- I am resubmitting a Form I-589 that was previously rejected to obtain an updated receipt notice based on the settlement in Vangala et al. v. USCIS et al., No. 4:20-cv-08143 (N.D. Cal.).

If any of the above statements apply to you, do not file online. If you submit your application online and it is later determined that one of the statements above applies to you, this may cause a delay in your case, or we may reject your Form I-589 and instruct you to submit your application by mail.

Please review the Form I-589 Instructions and the Form I-589 webpage for information on whether you need to submit your application for asylum by filing a paper Form I-589.

✔ Before You Start Your Application

📄 Eligibility

You may apply for asylum if you:

- Submit an application for asylum within 1 year of arriving in the United States, unless you can establish that there are changed circumstances that materially affect your eligibility for asylum or extraordinary circumstances directly related to your failure to file within 1 year.

Failure to file the Form I-589 within 1 year of your last arrival in the United States may also delay your eligibility for employment authorization or result in the denial of your application for employment authorization.

Simply filing an application for asylum does not entitle you to employment authorization or to work in the United States.

You may include in your asylum application your spouse and/or any children who are under 21 years of age and unmarried, if they are in the United States.

You are not eligible to apply for asylum with USCIS if you previously applied and were denied by an immigration judge (unless you can show that circumstances have changed which affect your eligibility for asylum)

📄 Fee

Fee: $0

📄 Refund Policy

USCIS does not refund fees, regardless of any action we take on your application, petition or request, or how long USCIS takes to reach a decision.

By continuing this transaction, you acknowledge that you must submit fees in the exact amount and that you are paying the fees for a government service.

Please refer to the instructions for the form(s) you are filing for additional information, or you may call the USCIS Contact Center at 800-375-5283. For TTY (deaf or hard of hearing) 800-767-1833.

⚠ Risk of removal

WARNINGS – IMPORTANT NOTICE

Removal from the United States – Applicants in the United States unlawfully are subject to removal if their asylum or withholding claims are not granted by an asylum officer or an immigration judge.

Use of information in Your Application – Any information provided in completing this application may be used as a basis for the initiation of, or as evidence in, removal proceedings, even if the application is later withdrawn.

F frivolous Applications – Applicants determined to have knowingly made a frivolous application for asylum will be permanently ineligible for any benefits under the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA). You may not avoid a frivolous finding simply because someone advised you to provide false information in your asylum application. See section 208(d)(6) of the INA and Title 8 of the Code of Federal Regulations (CFR) sections 208.20 and 208.30.

Failure to Appear for Interview or Biometric Appointment – If filing with U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (USCIS), unexcused failure to appear for an appointment or to provide biometrics (such as fingerprints) and other biographical information within the time allowed may delay eligibility for employment authorization and result in an asylum officer dismissing your asylum application or referring it to an immigration judge. Applicants and eligible dependents in removal proceedings who fail, without good cause, to provide USCIS with their biometrics or their biographical information as required within the time allowed may have their applications found abandoned by the immigration judge. See section 208(d)(5)(A) of the INA and 8 CFR sections 208.10, 1208.10, 1003.41(d).

① Additional information

Right to legal representation:

Immigration law is complex. You have the option of hiring a legal representative—at your own expense—for your asylum interview or Immigration Court proceedings.

For help completing this form and preparing your evidence, there are attorneys and voluntary agencies available for no fee or a reduced fee. Please refer to this list.

Employment authorization:

You can only ask for employment authorization (permission to work in the United States) if your asylum application is still pending 365 days after it was filed with USCIS. If your asylum application is denied before the 365-day period has passed, you will not be granted employment authorization.

You can submit an application for a work permit by filing a Form I-765, Application for Employment Authorization. Carefully follow the instructions and submit the form with proof that you have a pending asylum application.

Each family member included in your application who wants permission to work must submit a separate Form I-765.

If you are granted asylum, you will be allowed to work in the United States and do not have to apply for employment authorization. You can apply for an Employment Authorization Document (work permit) if you want evidence that you are allowed to work in the United States as a result of being granted asylum.

➔ Asylum Process

📄 File the I-589

When you submit your Form I-589 and evidence online, you will immediately receive a receipt notice. You will be able to track your case and see all USCIS notices in your account. We will notify you by email and/or text message with any updates.

📍 Attend your biometric services appointment

After submitting your application, you will receive a biometric services appointment notice. At the appointment, you will provide your fingerprints, photograph, and signature so that USCIS can verify your identity and conduct background and security checks, including a check of criminal history records maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), before making a decision on your application.

🗨️ Attend your interview

After submitting your application, you will receive a notice for your asylum interview.

If you do not speak English fluently, you must bring an interpreter with you to your interview. Your interpreter must be at least 18 years of age and be fluent in English and your language.

📧 Receive your asylum decision

At the end of your asylum interview, we will let you know how you will receive the decision in your case.

➔ Evidence

As part of applying for asylum, you must provide evidence to support your application. These documents help us determine if you are eligible for asylum and verify your answers.

Do not send us original documents in the mail. Provide legible copies of your documents unless we later ask for original documents.

You may amend or supplement your application before or at the time of your asylum interview with an asylum officer and at your hearing in Immigration Court by providing additional information and explanations about your asylum claim. For asylum applications filed with USCIS, submit any documentary evidence at least 14 calendar days before your interview with an asylum officer. Extensions to submit additional evidence may be granted by USCIS on a discretionary basis. Any such extension will be treated as an applicant-caused delay in the adjudication of your asylum application. Any applicant-caused delay will result in denial of your application for employment authorization if the delay is unresolved at the time you file for employment authorization. See 8 CFR sections 208.3.

Readable

Scan or take pictures of each document. Make sure each image you upload is clear and readable.

Translations

Any document containing foreign language submitted to USCIS must be accompanied by a full English-language translation that the translator has certified as complete and accurate, and by the translator's certification that he or she is competent to translate from the foreign language into English.

File requirements

Accepted file formats: JPG, JPEG, or PDF. Do not upload encrypted or password-protected files.

📄 Required documents

Dependent identification

For each family member you are including in your application as a dependent (spouse or child(ren)), you must upload proof of their identity and your relation to them. For all other family members, uploading identity documents is optional.

📄 Documents you may provide

The other documents you may need to submit will depend on the information you enter in the application. The online form will automatically determine the other documents you need.

Personal identification

Upload a copy of each page (cover to cover) of your passport, other travel documents, and any U.S. immigration documents.

We recommend you upload other identification if you have it, such as a birth certificate, military or national identification card, or driver's license. You may be asked to bring the originals of your and your family's identification documents to the interview.

Family identification

Upload documents that prove the identity of each family member you are not including as a dependent and your relationship to them.

- Proof of identity may include a copy (every page) of each relative's passport, other travel documents, and any U.S. immigration documents.
- Evidence of relationship may include birth records of your children, marriage certificate, or proof of termination of marriage, for each relative.

If you do not have (and cannot get) personal or family identification, you must try to provide other kinds of evidence such as medical, religious, and school records. We call this "secondary evidence."

You may also submit an affidavit from at least one person for each event you are trying to prove. Affidavits may be provided by relatives or others. Persons providing affidavits need not be U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents.

Cover letter

You may upload a cover letter to provide a summary of your application.

If you were previously included in a spouse's or parent's pending application but you are no longer eligible to be included as a derivative applicant, you must include a cover letter referencing the previous application and explaining that you are now independently filing for asylum.

Written statement

Your written statement should include events, dates, and details of your experiences that relate to your claim for asylum.

Specific claim of eligibility

Upload evidence showing the specific facts that support your claim.

- Evidence may include newspaper articles, affidavits of witnesses or experts, medical and/or psychological records, doctors' statements, periodicals, journals, books, photographs, official documents, or personal statements or live testimony from witnesses or experts.
- You may also upload an affidavit (statement or letter) from at least one person for each event you are trying to prove. Affidavits may be provided by relatives or others. Persons providing affidavits need not be U.S. citizens or lawful permanent residents.
- If you have difficulty discussing harm you have suffered in the past, you may wish to submit a health professional's report explaining this difficulty.
- If evidence supporting your claim is not reasonably available or you are not providing such corroboration at this time, you must explain why and upload this explanation.

General country conditions

You may upload reasonably available corroborative evidence showing the general conditions in the country from which you are seeking asylum.

Criminal History

Aliens who have been convicted of a particularly serious crime are not eligible for asylum. For applications filed on or after April 1, 1997, the conviction may have occurred either inside or outside of the United States. If you have been arrested in the United States you must submit a certified copy of all arrest reports, court dispositions, sentencing documents, and any other relevant documents. You must be prepared to provide the original upon request. If they are not available, upload an explanation of why documents are not available.

When answering the following questions about your asylum or other protection claim, remember that removal under section 241(b)(3) of the law is withholding of removal under the Convention Against Torture, and not just an alternative form of relief available to you if you are denied asylum or other protection. In the last of your ability, provide specific facts, dates, and identify them about each event or incident described.

You should attach documents establishing the general conditions in the country from which you are seeking asylum or other protection and the specific facts on which you are relying to support your claim in the Applicable section. If this documentation is unavailable or you are not providing this documentation with your application, you should explain why your responses to the following questions.

Eligibility

To qualify for asylum, you must establish that you are a refugee with a well-founded fear of return to your home country of nationality, or last habitual residence if you have no nationality, because of persecution or well-founded fear of persecution on account of race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion. The reason for your fear must be based on race, religion, nationality, membership in a particular social group, or political opinion even if you are not persecuted for any of these reasons.

If you are granted asylum, you and any eligible immediate family members are eligible to apply for work in the United States and may eventually adjust to lawful permanent resident status. If you are granted asylum, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) may file the determination you provide in this application to establish that you are inadmissible from the United States.

Additional Information

You must clearly describe any of your experiences, or those of family members or others, to whom you have had similar experiences that may show that you are a refugee.

If you have experienced harm that is likely to be repeated if you return to your home country, you should describe the events that caused the harm and explain why you believe the harm is likely to be repeated if you return to the United States. At your discretion, you may explain other factors having with the harm, including, but not limited to, the presence of family members, your financial situation, or other factors that you believe to be likely to be repeated if you return to your home country. If you are granted asylum, you and any eligible immediate family members are eligible to apply for work in the United States and may eventually adjust to lawful permanent resident status. If you are granted asylum, the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) may file the determination you provide in this application to establish that you are inadmissible from the United States.

📧 Respond to requests for information

If we need more information from you, we will send you a Request for Evidence (RFE) or Request for Information (RFI). You can respond to our request and upload your documents through your USCIS online account.

📁 Submit evidence after applying

We encourage you to submit all your supporting evidence when you submit your application.

If you are providing evidence after you have submitted your application but before your interview, use the unsolicited evidence option on the Documents tab related to the Form I-589 you submitted.

You may amend or supplement your application before or at the time of your asylum interview with an asylum officer and at your hearing in immigration court by providing additional information and explanations about your asylum claim. For asylum applications filed with USCIS, submit any documentary evidence at least 14 calendar days before your interview with an asylum officer. We may grant extensions to submit additional evidence on a discretionary basis. We will treat these extensions as an applicant-caused delay when adjudicating your asylum application. Any applicant-caused delay will result in us denying your application for employment authorization if the delay is unresolved when you file for employment authorization.

If you are presenting evidence during your interview, you must provide two copies of each document. If a document is in a foreign language, you must provide a full English translation of it and a translator's certification. You may also present other document types, including audio and video tapes, during your interview.
