RETAIN FOR YOUR RECORDSIntroduction: About this study

The National Center for Appropriate Technology (NCAT) and National Farm to School Network (NFSN) have a cooperative agreement with the U.S. Department of Agriculture's (USDA) Food and Nutrition Service (FNS) to develop a producer-focused farm to school curriculum, equip State agencies and their representatives to facilitate trainings using the curriculum, and support State agencies and others as they implement trainings.

The goal of this research is to assess the trainees' perceived readiness to provide training to producers, study the effectiveness of the training to inform the development of the farm to school curriculum, and examine areas that might be improved in follow-up technical assistance following the training. This research is being conducted by New York University.

Procedure: What will I do during this study?

As a trainer that has been through the train-the-trainer workshop, you are being asked to take part in a survey to be completed online. The survey should take approximately 20 minutes to complete.

Study Benefits: What good comes from this study?

Your feedback will help us assess the effectiveness of the training and the development of the curriculum and will inform revisions made to the curriculum for later use.

Token of Appreciation: Will I be paid for being in this study?

There is no cost to you for taking part in this study. You do not have to answer any questions that you do not want to. You will not be incentivized for your time in this study.

Anticipated Risks: Could anything bad happen to me during this study?

We will take care to minimize any risks of participating in this study. As with all research, there is a chance that privacy could be breached. For example, despite the best efforts of the research team to keep the information we collect during the study private, a breach may occur as a result of accidental human error or hacking. However, your survey responses will be confidential, so your email address and any identifying information will not be kept with your responses. In the event a breach occurs, all participants will be contacted and notified as to the extent of the breach, any damages incurred, and future potential risks; contact information for additional inquiries will also be provided. If you have any questions about this research study, you may call one of the research team members at 301-891-0470 or email a study representative at carolyn.dimitri@nyu.edu

Any data shared with other project partners (e.g., NCAT, NFSN, and USDA) will be de-identified, meaning that your email address (which is the only identifying information that can be tied to your responses) will be deleted from your responses before being shared with other project partners.

Everything you share will be kept confidential to the extent allowable by law. This means that we will not share any information you provide with anyone outside the study unless it is necessary to protect you, or required by law. However, if you indicate a direct threat of harm to yourself or others, we reserve the right to take necessary action out of concern for your welfare and the welfare of others.
