Study Announcement from OHS Director to HS Program Directors -

DRAFT

Dear Head Start Program Director,

In the coming weeks, you will be hearing about an exciting Head Start research study. I want to take a moment and share why this study is so important to us in the Office of Head Start and encourage you to participate if your program is selected.

Head Start Connects is a multi-year study to understand how Head Start programs provide comprehensive support services for the parents and guardians of the children in our care. These services are fundamental to Head Start's mission, reflecting our focus not only on education and development of young children, but also on the well-being of their families and caregivers. Head Start programs are doing meaningful, innovative, and often difficult work with parents and guardians—assessing needs, setting goals, and connecting them with services and supports. You share valuable information in your regular reporting about the types of services Head Start programs provide to parents and guardians, but we know very little about how programs coordinate and individualize these services. Our knowledge about the staff who are doing this important work is also limited. To better support this workforce, we want to learn about who they are, their experiences, and their well-being.

That's why the Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation in the Administration for Children and Families (ACF; U.S. Department of Health and Human Services) funded the Head Start Connects study.

This fall, the Head Start Connects team will be collecting data to better understand the range of practices for coordinating comprehensive family support services, highlight promising approaches, inform technical assistance, and strengthen our work with parents and guardians. This effort includes surveys for Head Start directors and family support staff, as well as focus groups with family support staff.

The data that the Head Start Connects team collects will reflect the experiences and perspectives of Head Start grant recipients across the country. Many—but not all—Head Start programs will be asked to participate in this study. If you receive an invitation for your program to be a part of the study, I strongly encourage you to participate. This is a unique opportunity for you and your staff to share your knowledge, your experiences, and your reflections about family support services with the Office of Head Start, ACF, and the field.

Email Subject Line: Invitation to participate in Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services

Dear [FIRST NAME] [LAST NAME],

Your Head Start program has been selected to take part in a survey for Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services. The goal of the study is to help the Office of Head Start build knowledge about how Head Start programs (inclusive of Head Start and Early Head Start services) coordinate family support services for parents/guardians and the practices used to ensure that service coordination is aligned with individual family needs and fosters family well-being.

Your input is vital to improving Head Start programs for families, children, and staff.

Benefits of participating.

We hope the information from the study will inform training and technical assistance offered by the Office of Head Start and help improve the experiences of families participating in, and staff members who work in, Head Start programs.

More about the study.

The study is sponsored by the Administration for Children and Families Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation in collaboration with the Office of Head Start. The full study aims to understand what service coordination looks like on the ground, learn more about the experiences of staff members providing these important services, and identify opportunities to better support Head Start programs and staff. The full study includes:

- 1) A web survey of Head Start Directors
- 2) A web survey of Family and Community Partnerships Managers
- 3) A web survey, up to 6 daily snapshot web surveys about workday activities, and focus groups of Family Support Services Staff

What we are asking of you.

Complete a 30-minute survey about your Head Start program and family support services staff. You may delegate survey completion to a knowledgeable administrative staff member.

In appreciation of your time, we are happy to offer a $25 honorarium.

Getting started.

- 1) Review the attached worksheet to help prepare for the survey.
- 2) Type the secure URL into any browser or click the button and enter your program's unique PIN. Information can be saved if you need to complete later.

Preparing for the Head Start Connects Director Survey

As part of the Director Survey, we gather information about family support services staff members who have primary responsibilities for family support services AND who work directly with families, that is, they carry a caseload.

This information is used to create a roster of staff eligible to participate in the study. Depending on the size of your Head Start program, 2 to 6 family support services staff members will be selected and invited to participate.

Before beginning the survey, we suggest gathering the information below for your staff members who have responsibilities for family support services AND who work directly with families. An upload option is also available for the following file formats: xlsx, csv, word.

Thank you for your time.

Good-bye.

Dear [FIRST NAME] [LAST NAME],

We recently contacted you to ask for your participation in Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services. The study will provide important information about how Head Start programs (inclusive of Head Start and Early Head Start services) coordinate family support services for parents/guardians and the practices used to ensure that service coordination is aligned with individual family needs and fosters family well-being. Your input is vital to improving Head Start programs for families and children.

The study is sponsored by the Administration for Children and Families Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation in collaboration with the Office of Head Start. MDRC and its partner NORC at the University of Chicago are conducting the study on behalf of the Office of Head Start. We hope the information from the study will inform training and technical assistance offered by the Office of Head Start and help improve the experiences of families participating in, and staff members who work in, Head Start programs.

We would like you to complete a 45-minute web survey. To thank you for your participation, we will send you a $25 honorarium for completing the survey. Participation is voluntary, and your responses will be kept private. You have the option to end the survey at any time or skip any question. A Spanish version is available if you prefer.

To begin, please type the secure URL into any computer or mobile device's web browser and enter the unique PIN. The survey does not have to be completed all at once; you can save your responses and return to the survey later.

Email Subject Line: Invitation to participate in brief surveys about your workdays in Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services

Dear [FIRST NAME] [LAST NAME],

We are pleased to invite you to take part in another part of Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services!

The goal of the study is to help the Office of Head Start build knowledge about how Head Start programs (inclusive of Head Start and Early Head Start services) coordinate family support services for parents/guardians and the practices used to ensure that service coordination is aligned with individual family needs and fosters family well-being. In this part of the study, the goal is to understand the kinds of activities you do in a typical workday, and also the kinds of stress and opportunities you may experience. We will invite you to share information about three of your workdays this week.

Your input is vital to improving Head Start programs for families, children, and staff.

Benefits of participating.

We hope the information from the study will inform training and technical assistance offered by the Office of Head Start and help improve the experiences of families and staff members in Head Start programs.

More about the study.

The study is sponsored by the Administration for Children and Families Office of Planning, Research, and Evaluation in collaboration with the Office of Head Start. The full study aims to understand what service coordination looks like on the ground, learn more about the experiences of staff members providing these important services, and identify opportunities to better support Head Start programs and staff. The full study includes:

- 1) A survey of Head Start Directors

Email Subject Line: Invitation to participate in Focus Groups for Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services

Dear [FIRST NAME] [LAST NAME],

We are pleased to invite you to participate in a focus group for Head Start Connects: A Study of Family Support Services.

The goal of the study is to help the Office of Head Start build knowledge about how Head Start programs (inclusive of Head Start and Early Head Start services) coordinate family support services for parents/guardians and the practices used to ensure that service coordination is aligned with individual family needs and fosters family well-being.

In this part of the study, we will ask you and family support staff from other Head Start programs around the country to share innovative approaches related to family support services and practices that could strengthen or broaden family support services. We will conduct the focus groups virtually using a videoconferencing platform like Zoom, so you will need a computer or a phone. The focus group will last for approximately 75 minutes.

Your input is vital to improving Head Start programs for families, children, and staff.

Benefits of participating.

We hope the information from the study will inform training and technical assistance offered by the Office of Head Start and help improve the experiences of families and staff members in Head Start programs.
