

The Landscape of Post-Translational Modifications in Tumor Biology Workshop

Date: September 22 -23

Location: Virtual

Registration

The virtual workshop's main objective is to bring experts in key and diverse areas of PTMs (ranging from ubiquitination, phosphorylation, acetylation, and methylation to glycosylation) together to discuss the current status of science, important advances, and gaps/challenges that may stand in the way of new directions and opportunities when attempting to unravel the complexities of tumor biology. Experts in the field are invited to present their research and to address, through panel discussions, how to better integrate these disparate – yet interconnected areas of PTM research as integral building blocks underlying tumor biology from bench to bedside.

Speakers, Session Chairs, Moderators and Panelists:

Wenyi Wei, Ph.D., Harvard Medical School
Frank McCormick, Ph.D., FRS, D.Sci (Hon), UCSF
Craig Crews, Ph.D., Yale University
Junming Peng, St. Jude Children's Research Hospital
Raul Mostoslavsky, M.D., Ph.D., Harvard Medical School
Ronen Marmorstein, Ph.D., University of Pennsylvania
Danielle L. Swaney, Ph.D., UCSF
Sharon J. Pitteri, Ph.D., Stanford University School of Medicine
Marcia Haigis, Ph.D., Harvard Medical School
Tony Hunter, Ph.D., Salk Institute
Phil Cole, M.D., Ph.D., Harvard Medical School
Gerald Hart, Ph.D., University of Georgia
Cynthia Wolberger, Ph.D., Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine
Cheryl Walker, Ph.D., Baylor College of Medicine
Yingming Zhao, Ph.D., University of Chicago
Dannie Engle, Ph.D., Salk Institute
Robert Sackstein, M.D., Ph.D., Florida International University
Rosalie Sears, Ph.D., Oregon Health and Sciences University
Yuan Chen, Ph.D., UCSD
Or Gozani, M.D., Ph.D., Stanford University
Mark Bedford, Ph.D., MD Anderson
