

HRHR Seminar Series

The NIH High-Risk, High-Reward Research (HRHR) Seminar is a virtual monthly seminar series featuring exciting talks from HRHR awardees on topics spanning the broad mission of the NIH. The seminars occur on the second Thursday of the month from 3:00-4:00 PM Eastern Time. Each seminar features two 20-minute presentations followed by 10 minutes of Q&A.

HRHR awardees are welcome, but not required, to participate. If you are interested in speaking at the seminar, please submit an abstract through this survey. Due to a limited number of seminar spots, not all submissions may be selected. Submitted abstracts will be reviewed by NIH staff and speakers selected for balance and diversity (i.e., topic areas, institution, award). Preference may be given to those near the end of their project period. Chosen speakers will be notified via email. Please note that speaker selections for the HRHR Seminar does not impact speaker selection for the June HRHR Symposium.

HRHR is unusual in the breadth of the science represented. Abstracts and presentations should be prepared with a broad audience in mind. Please prepare sufficient background and at such a level that non-experts in the field can readily understand the significance, innovation, and impact of the research.

You are welcome to update your abstract or title anytime by contacting NIH staff. Please contact Becky Miller at becky.miller2@nih.gov with any questions or concerns.
