

Federal Student Loan Debt Relief: Parent Income Waiver Request

Who should fill out this form?

If you submit this form and meet the requirements, we'll use your income (not your parents' income) to determine your eligibility for student loan debt relief.

A borrower should ONLY submit this form if ALL of the following apply:

- You submitted a Federal Student Loan Debt Relief Application.
- The U.S. Department of Education contacted you requesting that you have a parent complete the Parent Income Form because you were enrolled as a dependent student during academic year 2021–22.
- You determined that you're not a dependent student for one of the reasons below.

You can be considered a dependent student for financial aid purposes whether or not you live with your parents and even if they don't claim you as a dependent on their tax returns.

How do I know if I'm not a dependent student?

You can request to be considered an independent student if one or more of the following are true:

- Between July 1, 2021 and June 30, 2022, I was:
 - Married
 - Enrolled as a graduate student
 - A parent
 - A caretaker of dependents (other than children or a spouse) who live with me and receive more than half their support from me
 - A veteran or active duty in the Armed Forces

 - An emancipated minor
 - An orphan, in foster care, or a ward of the court

 - An emancipated minor or under legal guardianship of someone other than my parent or stepparent

 - An unaccompanied youth who was homeless or self-supporting and at risk of being homeless
- I was born before January 1, 1998.
- I am unable to obtain information from my parents because I don't know where they are or am unable to contact them.
- My parents are deceased.

How It Works

Submit today (but no later than Dec. 31, 2023) so we can determine if you qualify as an independent student. If you meet the requirements, we'll continue to process your application for debt relief.
