Use at the start of each study

The information you provide in this study will be used by the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB) to refine its approach to delivering consumer-facing tools and materials. The study does not collect any personally identifiable information (PII) and the feedback you provide will be assigned a randomly generated participant ID. In addition to your feedback, you may opt to provide certain demographic data, such as age range, education level, household size, and current work status. The CFPB will only use this information to support the study and will not link it to your name or any other direct identifier. Only aggregated information will be included in any final or published reports, which may be shared internally within CFPB and with external CFPB partners and stakeholders. Participation in this study is voluntary.
