2023 Business Response Survey on Layoffs and State Workforce Programs

Employers have experienced unprecedented disruptions in their operations since the COVID-19 pandemic began over three years ago. These disruptions have resulted in layoffs and other business contractions, which have led to difficulties in hiring and training new employees. To better understand the impact of these difficulties, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS), in collaboration with the Employment and Training Administration (ETA) is seeking information from businesses like yours on their experiences. This information will aid policy makers in evaluating, improving, and expanding state workforce programs to support employers and employees.

Please continue to this short survey about layoffs and state workforce programs at this business location.

Familiarity with State Workforce Programs

Layoff aversion programs apply strategies and activities intended to prevent or minimize the duration of unemployment resulting from layoffs. The Short Time Compensation (STC) program, also known as work sharing or shared-work, is an example of a layoff aversion program and provides an alternative to layoffs for employers experiencing a reduction in available work. This layoff aversion program allows employers with at least two employees to reduce the hours of work for employees, rather than laying off employees, and employees experiencing a reduction in hours are allowed to collect a percentage of their unemployment insurance benefits to make up for lost wages.

13. Before this survey, had you heard of the Short Time Compensation (STC) program (also known as work sharing or shared-work)?

 No
