The FCC established the Reassigned Numbers Database (RND) for prevention of consumers from receiving unwanted calls. The creation of the RND will allow callers to determine whether a telephone number has been permanently disconnected after a date certain and therefore is no longer assigned to the party the caller wants to reach.

Service Providers (or their Agents) are required to submit permanently disconnected number data for numbering resources from geographic numbering plan area (NPA) codes in the United States and its territories. The requirement applies to SPs allocated geographic number resources from geographic NPAs from other NANP countries, and does not apply to Service Providers (SPs) allocated non-geographic 5XX-NXX numbering resources.

The requirement does not apply to SPs that are Responsible Organizations (RespOrgs) assigned Toll Free Numbers, because the Toll Free Number Administrator (TFNA) has sole responsibility for reporting of toll free disconnected data to the RND.

Users (or their Agents) have the ability to query the RND to validate whether a telephone number has the potential to have been reassigned from the consumer the User intends to reach, thus allowing the User to avoid calling a consumer with a reassigned number who may wish to receive the call. The RND provides callers access to a reliable source of permanently disconnected telephone numbers in order to obtain Safe Harbor from TCPA liability.
