Email Subject Line: We Want To Hear From You - Workforce Burnout and Job Satisfaction Survey

You were selected by your health center leadership to participate in a pilot test of the Health Resources and Services Administration (HRSA) Health Center Workforce Survey that will be rolled out in the near future to all health centers nationwide. The purpose of this survey is to provide information to HRSA and health centers on factors that affect health center employee burnout, well-being and job satisfaction. Results from the survey will help HRSA and health centers implement strategies to reduce burnout and improve job satisfaction. HRSA and their contractor, John Snow Inc. (JSI), are extending an invitation to participate in the pilot survey to a small number of employees working in different types of occupations at your health center.

The pilot test will gauge how the survey works including if it is easy to administer; if the software and data collection work as intended; and if the questions capture a range of opinions and provide good measurement of various workplace concepts. Results from the pilot will be used to correct any technical issues or survey administration problems in advance of the large scale national administration. The online survey takes about a half hour to complete. HRSA and JSI hope that participants can complete the survey, as honestly and accurately as possible, within ten business days of receiving this invitation.

Your information and responses will be kept confidential. Neither respondent names nor responses will be shared with Health Centers and only summaries of responses will be shared with HRSA.

To participate in the pilot HRSA Health Center Workforce Survey, simply click on the link below provided by JSI and follow the instructions. Only JSI will have access to your answers.
