NATIONAL SURVEY OF VICTIM SERVICE PROVIDERS:
TIER 1 STATE CANVASSING RESULTS

Overview

Results

The original design of the National Survey of Victim Service Providers (NSVSP) contemplated the creation of a comprehensive database of victim service providers (VSPs) throughout the United States. The database would be used to draw a sample of VSPs that would be contacted (presumably by mail) and asked to complete a questionnaire to help describe the current landscape of victim services. This database, or “sampling frame,” was initially developed using information provided to the project by the National Center for Victims of Crime (NCVC), the federal Office for Victims of Crime (OVC), the federal Office on Violence Against Women (OVW), and the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grants Program at the Bureau of Justice Assistance (JAG).

In order to develop a richer sampling frame that would include VSPs unknown to Washington, D.C.-based entities such as NCVC, OVC, OVW, and JAG, it was decided that an effort would be undertaken to identify private organizations and public agencies that were likely to have compiled lists of VSPs within their own states. Examples might include state-level domestic violence coalitions, state-level sexual assault coalitions, state attorneys general, state victims’ compensation boards, state offices dedicated to providing services to victims of crime, and various public interest organizations primarily serving the states in which they are located. Once identified, we would reach out to these entities and request that they provide us with information about any VSPs they were aware of. By shifting the focus of our frame building from nationally-sourced listings to compilations at the individual state-level, it might be possible to augment the frame both in terms of increased size and in terms of a more balanced set of VSPs, thus filling in some of the gaps in provider types and available services resulting from any inherent biases or shortcomings in the data we received from NCVC, OVC, OVW, and JAG.

We limited this effort to what we labeled as “Tier 1” locations, the 11 largest states in the country based on population size (California, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Texas). We conducted web-based text searches to locate private organizations and government agencies that would be good candidates for VSP information.

Out of hundreds of potential leads, we identified 89 organizations and agencies that appeared to have (or were likely to have) compiled state-wide listings of VSPs. After a considerable effort to engage these sources, learn more about their holdings, and if promising, request their cooperation to provide such listings to enhance our survey frame, we concluded that 52 sources offered the greatest potential benefit to the effort (the other 37 organizations and agencies were dropped, usually because it appeared that their information was obtained from sources we had already identified or were in the process of acquiring). Of the 52, we received the requested information or were pointed to its location by 46 of the targets. Two indicated that they were willing to provide what we were asking for, but failed to follow through with their assurances despite repeated contacts. Three targets never meaningfully responded to our contact attempts, the reasons for which are unclear. Only one target refused outright, a small organization that was unwilling to share its proprietary membership roster with us. In the end, we were able to gather information from 46 respondents, or about four per site state. The participants, listed below, were the sources for 51 different sets of VSP names.

Number of VSPs Identified by Canvassing

The private organizations and government agencies in the Tier 1 states supplied us with (or identified sources for) contact information regarding a total of 8,075 entities. The names were added to an existing project frame that contained 21,116 records at the time. Deduplication processing of the expanded frame has so far reduced the total to 25,772 records, with one major task involving eyes-on review of potential duplicates still outstanding. When completed, that final deduplication could reduce the frame size by a maximum of about 2,400 records, though casual testing suggests that the reduction will be far smaller. Absent the contribution of any additional VSP name sources going forward, the full census survey frame will thus contain somewhere between 23,500 and 25,500 records.¹

The fact that deduplication efforts are continuing means that this analysis of the net contribution to the frame realized by the canvassing work is preliminary. Additional reductions of frame size are likely to have a disproportionate impact on records obtained through the canvassing, because the frame had already been subject to various rounds of deduplication prior to the point when the ~8,000 new records were added. Thus the findings below somewhat overstate the “value” of the effort to reach out to organizations and agencies and acquire state level listings of VSPs, as a number of those currently characterized as previously unknown VSPs will be determined to have existed in the frame once final deduplication is complete.

VSP Counts and Type by Data Source, All Records

At the present time, the listing provided by the National Center for Victims of Crime remains the largest single contributor to the frame (Table 1). About 54 percent of the records in the current frame existed in the NCVC data we received. The canvassing also made a sizeable contribution, with 22 percent of the frame now consisting of records matching to VSPs found in the state level work. The percentages in Table 1 total more than 100 percent, because individual records in the frame may have been found in multiple sources.

Table 1: Contribution to Overall Frame by Source – All Records

Source	VSPs From Source	Percent of Total Frame
NCVC	14,022	54.4
OVC	6,927	26.9
OVW	3,808	14.8

¹ The actual number of surveys distributed will be less than the final deduplicated frame size, because certain types of records (e.g., VSPs with foreign addresses, in U.S. overseas territories, with missing mailing addresses, consisting of only embassies and consulates, etc.) will be dropped before questionnaire packages are produced.

Source	VSPs From Source	Percent of Total Frame
JAG	63	0.2
Tier 1 Canvassing	5,658	21.9

NOTE: Categories are not mutually exclusive

How many of the VSPs identified during the canvassing were “new” in that a similar record did not already exist in the data? As stated at the outset, the count of unique records will undoubtedly change following final deduplication, but at the present time about 4,700 additional VSPs have been added to the frame as a result of the Tier 1 canvassing (Table 2).

Table 2: Overlap by Source – All Records

Source	Count	Percent of Total Frame
In NCVC\OVC\OVW\JAG data only	20,114	78.1
In both Tier 1 and NCVC\OVC\OVW\JAG data	943	3.7
In Tier 1 only	4,715	18.3

Focusing on each of the three main original sources for the frame (data from NCVC, OVC, and OVW), the best match between those sources and the VSPs yielded by the canvassing were found in OVC records, though the overlap was not particularly large (Table 3).

Table 3: Canvassing Match-Ups – All Records

Sources	Percent From Both Sources	All Records From Either Source
Tier 1 and NCVC data	2.7	19,162
Tier 1 and OVC data	5.6	11,921
Tier 1 and OVW data	3.3	5,719

NOTE: Categories are not mutually exclusive

Table 4 describes the distribution of the frame by the text-based categorizations of VSP types and services used for the pilot test sampling. The records identified during the canvassing match up to a large degree to the overall frame for certain categories such as shelters\domestic violence\sexual assault providers (about 17 percent), though less well for criminal justice system providers as a whole (about 26 percent of all records, compared to 32 percent for just the Tier 1 canvassing records). The latter result is not surprising, as criminal justice sources (state attorneys general, state departments of justice, etc.) were very common targets of our canvassing efforts, often yielding lengthy lists of victim\witness assistance programs run by prosecutors and police departments in each county.

Table 4: Contribution to Overall Frame by Source – All Records

Source	All Records (%)	Any Tier 1 canvassing (%)	NCVC\ OVC\ OVW\ JAG data only (%)	Both Tier 1 and NCVC\ OVC\ OVW\ JAG data (%)	Tier 1 Canvassing only (%)

Other Community-Federal Status	13.0	4.8	15.3	28.6	0.0
Unknown	35.1	41.6	33.2	9.9	47.9
SYSTEM-BASED	26.3	32.3	24.6	17.6	35.2
COMMUNITY-BASED	73.7	67.7	75.4	82.4	64.8

As can also be seen in Table 4, Tier 1 records differ markedly in whether or not they have been identified as federally funded. None of the records that were sourced from Tier 1 alone meet the criteria for “Other Community-Known Federal Funding”. This is understandable, given that our primary means for federal funding identification comes from OVC or OVW, so records that do not have either agency as one of its contributory sources cannot be flagged in this way. If federal funding status is ignored, the combined “Other Community” category (was about 48 percent of all records and about 46 percent for Tier 1).

VSP Counts and Type by Data Source, Tier 1 States Only

The results shown above are arguably misleading, as they include VSPs in states other than those in Tier 1. Focusing only on Tier 1 states provides a better sense of what might be realized if the canvassing is continued elsewhere. In the current frame, 13,493 records have addresses in the Tier 1 sites (52.4 percent of the full frame). Of these, 5,600 were identified (either uniquely or matching an existing record) by the canvassing, a contribution that is nearly equal to that provided by the NCVC data (Table 5).²

Table 5: Contribution to Overall Frame by Source – Tier 1 State Records Only

Source	VSPs From Source	Percent of Total Frame
NCVC	6,078	45.1

² It will be noted that the total count for Tier 1 canvassing VSPs in Table 5 differs slightly from that shown in Table 1. In some instances, the lists we acquired from a state-level entity during the canvassing contained a very small number of VSPs from nearby states. For example, a VSP in Shreveport, Louisiana might be included on a listing of providers potentially available to Texas residents, given the city’s proximity to relatively unpopulated areas of the eastern part of the state.

Source	VSPs From Source	Percent of Total Frame
OVC	2,978	21.3
OVW	1,332	9.9
JAG	25	0.2
Tier 1 Canvassing	5,657	41.9

NOTE: Categories are not mutually exclusive

The 4,700 unique records added by the canvassing loom much larger when the focus is only on the Tier 1 states. As Table 6, suggests, more than a third of the frame for these states now comes from the canvassing work alone. Even if final deduplication results in eliminating half of these new records (highly unlikely), the remaining newly added records would still constitute 21 percent of the total Tier 1 frame.

Table 6: Overlap by Source – Tier 1 State Records Only

Source	Count	Percent of Total Frame
In NCVC\OVC\OVW\JAG data only	7,836	58.1
In both Tier 1 and NCVC\OVC\OVW\JAG data	942	7.0
In Tier 1 only	4,715	34.9

Once again, the best match between each of the three main original sources for the frame and the canvassing VSPs for the Tier 1 states alone was the result of OVC data (Table 7).

Table 7: Canvassing Match-Ups – Tier 1 State Records Only

Sources	Percent From Both Sources	All Records From Either Source
Tier 1 and NCVC data	4.6	11,217
Tier 1 and OVC data	8.4	7,873
Tier 1 and OVW data	4.5	6,688

NOTE: Categories are not mutually exclusive

The dominance of criminal justice system VSPs in the canvassing data becomes more pronounced in the Tier 1 states (Table 8). Nearly a third of the canvassing VSPs were system-based, contrasted with 22 percent for records that came from the four other sources.³ Given that no reference list of VSPs is available to use as a basis of comparison, we cannot say whether the canvassing sources are biased towards the identification of system-based providers or whether the original four sources in the aggregate underrepresented these types of VSPs.

³ This percentage for VSP records where a contributing source was NCVC, OVC, OVW, or JAG, regardless of whether the VSPs were also identified by the canvassing effort, is not reflected by Error! Reference source not found.

SYSTEM-BASED	26.8	32.3	22.9	17.6	35.2
COMMUNITY-BASED	73.2	67.7	77.1	82.4	64.8

How did the original frame and the results of the canvassing compare in terms of location? To distinguish metropolitan VSPs from those located in small towns or rural areas, we used a Zip code-based approximation of the census tract-based 2006 Rural-Urban Commuting Area Codes (RUCA), developed by the Health Resources and Service Administration’s Office of Rural Health Policy. Combining measures of population density, urbanization, and daily commuting, RUCA classifies census tracts as metropolitan, “micropolitan” (an urban cluster of 10,000 to 50,000 in population), small town, or rural area. We matched the zip codes in the frame with those in the RUCA to extent possible, and counted any zip code having a RUCA 2.0 code of 7.0 or higher as a “rural area or small town.” The match was not always successful, and of the 13,493 records in the Tier 1 states, we were unable to classify VSP location in 5.6 percent.

For the 12,741 RUCA-matched records, about 10 percent of the original frame was located in a rural area or small town (Table 9). The VSPs identified by the canvassing work have a much higher percentage of records located outside of metropolitan or micropolitan areas. Arguably this suggests that the use of state-level sources for VSP identification does a better job of picking up non-urban providers compared to sources with a national focus, though as was also true with the system-based vs. community-based comparison, we cannot say which source is more accurate in this regard.

Table 9: Distribution in Rural Areas and Small Towns – Tier 1 State Records Only

Frame Contribution by State

The distribution of VSPs identified by both the original frame building and the state-level canvassing track relatively well with the population distribution in the Tier 1 states (Table 10). For example, California’s population makes up 21 percent of all Tier 1 states, 20 percent of the VSPs in the original frame were located in California, 22 percent of the current frame is Californian, 24 percent of the VSPs yielded by the canvassing were in California, and 27 percent of the unique VSPs found by the canvassing were in California as well. This is not always the case (if the federally-sourced VSP frame is used as a hypothetical benchmark, then the canvassing in Texas produced a disproportionately large number of new VSPs), but generally the most populated states have the largest number of VSPs based on the sources we have been able to access, while the least populated have the smallest number.

Table 10: Distribution of VSPs by State

State	Tier 1 Pop. (%)	Pre-Canvassing Frame (%)	Post-Canvassing Frame (%)	All VSPs Identified by Canvassing (%)	“New” VSPs From Canvassing (%)
California	21.2	20.1	22.4	24.3	26.7
Florida	10.7	10.6	8.8	6.4	5.3
Georgia	5.5	6.8	6.1	5.0	5.0

Pennsylvania	7.2	6.7	5.4	3.3	2.8
Texas	14.3	13.7	17.6	24.3	24.9

NOTE: Population percentages from U.S. Census Bureau 2010 Demographic Profile

Despite what can be seen in Table 10, the benefit of the canvassing approach in terms of raw numbers was not equally distributed across the states (Table 11). Overall, the current frame for the Tier 1 states alone is 54 percent larger than before the canvassing was conducted, but in Texas, North Carolina, and California the increase was at least 70 percent, while in New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Georgia the increase was only between 13 and 27 percent.

California	1,765	1,257	71.2
Florida	934	248	26.6

Pennsylvania	591	132	22.3
Texas	1,200	1,174	97.8
TOTAL	8,778	4,715	53.7

The relatively large percentage increases in Texas, North Carolina, and California were due to the efforts of one organization in each location that made a concerted effort to act as a centralized and comprehensive clearing house for contact information of VSPs throughout the state. The Texas Crime Victim Clearinghouse of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, the North Carolina Victim Assistance Network, and the California Victims of Crime Resource Center (VCRC) all have dedicated and ongoing programs for identifying VSPs within their states regardless of location, organizational orientation (e.g., government agencies versus non-profits), services available, crimes covered, or populations served. The VCRC, for example, receives yearly funding from the California Emergency Management Agency for this sole purpose. While many entities we contacted make claims that they effectively act as a centralize depository for VSP contact information, they typically concentrate on specific types of VSP such as those connected to the criminal justice system or related to domestic violence. It is unknown whether other states outside of Tier 1 also have entities with similar missions, and it is possible that canvassing in such locations would be more likely to see increases in total VSPs closer to the range of 25 to 50 percent that was typical for the other eight Tier 1 states.

Table 12 illustrates how the operational focus of the various private organizations and government agencies contacted as part of the canvassing effort can influence the makeup of the received lists. Across all Tier 1 sites, criminal justice system-based VSPs made up 22.3 percent of all records in the frame prior to the canvassing work, though that percent varied markedly by state, with a range of 13 percent for California to 35 percent in Texas.

State	Pre-Canvassing Frame	All VSPs Identified by Canvassing	“New” VSPs From Canvassing
Texas	35.2	65.7	72.8

For California, Georgia, and to a lesser extent Ohio, the percent contribution of system-based VSPs was roughly the same prior to the canvassing work, for all VSPs identified by the canvassing, and the set of unique VSPs that have no match (at least at this point) with existing records. In the other states, the differences between these three groups are more striking, with the canvassing results in Michigan and Texas about double the system-based percentages in those states. In only two states are the percentages of system-based VSPs smaller in the Tier 1 canvassing set than they were in the original frame. This is most noticeable in the case of New Jersey, where the canvassing effort failed to identify even a single VSP that was flagged by our text based searches as possibly related to a prosecutors’ office, a police department, or some other system-based governmental entity. That result is surprising, in part because 19 percent of the original frame was system-based, and in part because one of the participating list suppliers was the Victim Assistance Unit of the New Jersey State Police. The information provided by the NJ State Police was almost exclusively focused on domestic and sexual violence service providers throughout the state, which tend to be community-based entities. It is certainly possible that had we continued our canvassing effort beyond the time we had allocated for the search phase of the work we would have found other NJ sources with more of a criminal justice focus, but the procedure we followed cut off the web search after about four hours.

Table 13 presents the degree to which non-urban VSPs contribute to different sets of providers in each of the Tier 1 states. In California, Florida, Georgia, North Carolina, and New Jersey, the rural\small town percentages of both the original frame and the VSPs contained in the lists provided to us by our canvassing sources were fairly close in size. In New York and Ohio, the canvassing VSPs had a somewhat higher percent. But in Illinois, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Texas, there was a significant bump in the “ruralness” of the VSPs found in the canvassing work. As was true with the system-based measures discussed above, it is clear that what a state-level canvassing approach will yield in terms of VSP characteristics is likely to vary markedly from state to state.

Approach

Initial Canvassing

We initially conducted web-based text searches for each of the Tier 1 states using strings such as [“Michigan” AND “victim” AND (“referral” OR “help” OR “assistance” OR “shelter” OR “counseling” OR “sexual” OR “rape” OR “battered” OR “fraud” OR “assault” OR “abuse” OR “domestic” OR “violence” OR “crime” or “services” OR “haven” OR “compensation” OR “protection” OR “program” OR “service” OR “provider” OR “health” OR “emergency” OR “prevent” OR “rights” OR “justice” OR “directory” OR “resource” OR “protection” OR “coalition” OR “association” OR “office” OR “foundation” OR “network” OR “council” OR “alliance” OR “commission” OR “authority” OR “advocacy”)]. Subsequent searches used more tailored criteria based upon hits received during the initial search. We also looked for specific types of private organizations and government entities we had encountered in earlier searches that fit our target characteristics.

The websites of organizations and agencies identified in this way were then examined to determine whether they presented information on VSPs on the website itself (such as a single webpage listing, a link to download a file with such information, or an interactive map or menu that would identify local VSPs based on desired criteria), offered a referral service (such as a hotline number) for victims of crime looking for assistance, or were likely to have such information due to the inherent nature of the entity (such as a coalition of individual domestic violence providers). Even if such indicators were present, we dropped those entities that seemed to focus on a particular region or city rather than state-wide, that relied upon other sources for VSP information (such as a hotline that simply utilized another organization’s website for identifying providers) or that included a significant number of VSPs in multiple states in its listings (which suggested a national-focus). Staff assigned to the initial canvassing work were told to spend no more than four hours conducting these searches for each state.

Outreach

An initial contact letter on Office of Justice Programs letterhead, signed by the then Acting Director of the Bureau of Justice Statistics, was sent to each of the potential participants identified in the initial web searches. The letter was sent to the attention of an individual at the private organization or government agency who appeared from the web search to be the immediate head of the program.⁴ RAND was responsible for assembling, stamping, and mailing the initial contact letters. The letter provided an overview of the project, described our need for state-level VSP listings, asked for the organization’s cooperation, and explained that a RAND project team member would be following up. A sample copy of the letter is appended to this document.

⁴ While it is not especially difficult to determine the head of an NGO or state agency, its victim service component might be a relatively small section within the organization and much less likely to list the names of staff members in publicly available locations. Direct line phone numbers and direct email addresses were also difficult to locate.

Next we reached out by both phone and email to initiate a dialog that would hopefully result in the candidate source sending RAND an electronic file containing at least the provider name and mailing address. In order to reduce a potential source's concerns over the release of sensitive information and the level of effort that would be needed to comply with RAND's request, we did not ask for information beyond that minimally required for a mailed survey, though in many instances sources provided additional fields such as contact information for a key individual at each VSP and/or information about the VSP's services or orientation.

The outreach phase was an unexpectedly labor-intensive part of the work. In order to set up a tele-conference to make a personal appeal for the information we sought, to have that initial discussion, to perform any necessary follow-up contact, and to arrange for the delivery of the information (or the identification of the location where the information resided), we exchanged more than 350 emails or phone calls with the entities that eventually participated.

Many of these exchanges related to the difficulties inherent in following up on what was essentially a cold call letter asking for assistance in a task without any obviously benefit to the recipient. Getting the candidate source to simply agree to a time and day for the first phone conversation could take, on occasion, weeks of voice mail and email requests to achieve, due to personnel changes, vacations, busy schedules, "walls" placed by administrative assistants screening outside calls, and the usual problem of playing phone tag. While generally the staff at these entities were not unsympathetic to the purposes of the NSVSP, there was sometimes reluctance encountered related to the perceived level of effort that might be required to share their data. We made a special effort to allay such concerns whenever raised, offering to take the data in whatever form was easiest for the source to transfer, assuring them that we were interested even if the information had not been updated for quite some time, and limiting the core request to organization names and mailing addresses.

There was minimal resistance related to the idea of sharing information the entities maintained on VSOs within their state. This was somewhat surprising, since we believed that "intellectual property" concerns would have been a commonly-raised reason for declining our request. One possible explanation is that many of our contacts were state agencies, and thus had minimal interest in controlling information flow. Another was that much of what we asked for was already on a publicly-available website, so that there was little obvious benefit to the entity by resisting our request. And finally the initial contact letter from BJS (and ultimately DOJ) was very persuasive, as some of our targets were already receiving federal funding for victim-related purposes. We had excellent results whenever a contact independently reached out to BJS to discuss the request with the NSVSP project manager. Nevertheless, getting busy individuals at sometimes understaffed NGOs and agencies to agree to perform tasks outside of their normal job duties could be a challenge.

Processing

Ideally we would have received an electronic file from a participating source that had each of the key elements for adding a VSP to the frame (organization name, department, street or box address, city, zip code, and if available, individual contact name, contact phone number, contact email, VSP type, VSP services, and VSP target population) already in separate fields. This was rarely the case. We were surprised to learn that in many instances, the VSP information appearing on the website was in a form not directly accessible to current staff at the participating source, often because of a lack of technical expertise in maintaining databases built in the past. As a result, the screen display was the sole source for the information even for the entity itself, as there was no separate spreadsheet, database, or organized text document available. When this was the case, RAND staff was required to pull the information off the website and organize the individual entries for processing. Even when we did receive an electronic file, the information was often organized in a form that required copying and pasting each individual element (street address, zip code, etc.) into a spreadsheet for further processing. In some instances, the effort required was minimal, but for others considerable work was necessary to get the data into shape. This was most notably true for the sources that provided two of the three largest VSP counts of any of our participating entities: the Texas Crime Victim Clearinghouse (http://www.tdcj.state.tx.us/divisions/vs/victim_resource_directory.html) and the California Victims of Crime Resource Center (<http://www.1800victims.org/>). Because the website directories were originally built by now-departed staff, the two entities were currently unable to provide us with anything in electronic form.⁵ As a result, RAND administrative staff was required to individually parse out 1,453 VSP contacts from the California website and 780 for the Texas website, each contact requiring drilling down through interactive maps or menus.

Labor Required

RAND administrative staff spent 29 person-days performing the initial web searches, preparing the contact mailout, processing the received data, and extracting information from websites and paper documents. RAND NSVSP research staff spent 26 person-days planning and managing the canvassing effort, performing all direct contacts with candidate sources, performing necessary programming to integrate the information with the existing frame, and analyzing the results.

Moving Forward

The remaining states include the Tier 2 group (Arkansas, Delaware, Idaho, Iowa, Michigan, Montana, New Hampshire, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, and West Virginia) that reports complete data to the National Incident-Based Reporting System, and Tier 3 (the District of Columbia and the remaining 24 states not in Tier 1 or Tier 2). Two obvious questions arise when considering whether to include those locations in a similar canvassing effort. The first is what might be the benefit derived from doing so. In terms of raw counts, a reasonable assumption is that the expansion of the frame would be similar to what we have seen in the Tier 1 effort. As a result of the canvassing, the frame expanded by 54 percent over its original size. But much of that increase was due to the perhaps unique situations in California and Texas where comprehensively tracking VSP contact information was a primary purpose of two organizations. If the two states are excluded, the average increase was 39 percent. As stated at the outset, final deduplication will undoubtedly reduce the number of truly “new” VSPs added by the canvassing, but even if the reduction essentially cuts the number in half, the increase would be about 20 percent.

The second question is how much money would it take to increase the frame by 20 percent or more in the Tier 2 and 3 states? Much of the time spent by RAND NSVSP research staff to plan and manage the Tier 1 work would not be repeated for Tiers 2 and 3, as instructions for administrative staff, contact materials, and necessary programming can be applied to any follow-on work. It is also unlikely that we would encounter sources like the California and Texas examples mentioned previously that required such intensive administrative assistance to process hundreds of VSPs. Other tasks would require repeating what was done in its entirety. The initial web based canvassing would still need as much as four hours per state, and presumably the cycle of repeated contacts for each potential source would be the same regardless if the entity was located in a relatively small state.

Our estimate at the present time is that each of the two remaining Tiers would require no more than half of the administrative staff and researcher time as Tier 1 did. That would be 14.5 days administrative and 13 days research management for Tier 2 and a similar amount of time for Tier 3.

[REDACTED]

Dear [REDACTED]

With support from the Federal Office for Victims of Crime, the U.S. Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) is launching a new data collection effort, the National Survey of Victim Service Organizations (NSVSO). The goal of the NSVSO is to provide nationwide data on the capacities and constraints of victim service providers, including their organizational features, staffing, funding, and the types of services they provide. The victim services field does not currently have the type of comprehensive research needed to assess progress in providing widespread and effective services to victims or the relative health of the impressive service infrastructure that has built up in this area over the last 20 years. This project is a step in that direction.

We are reaching out to you today for your help in this important work. In order to generate reliable and representative data, the NSVSO must start with a comprehensive listing of victim services providers across the country. Since no single point source for this information currently exists, developing the sampling frame requires an exhaustive canvassing of a wide variety of national-level and state-level resources for contact information of known providers.

As part of this work, we are exploring whether private organizations or public agencies within the state of [REDACTED] have already attempted to compile state or local lists of victim service providers. Based on initial research, it appears that the [REDACTED] maintains a set of provider names for the purpose of presenting a county-based interactive map for locating victim service providers.

We are requesting that the [REDACTED] share a simplified extract of this provider information with BJS to help build a listing of victim service organizations to be used for survey purposes. We do not need personally-identifiable information or individual names, just the names and mailing addresses of organizations that you have already identified as providers of services to crime victims. This information will not be used for any purpose other than to build the sampling frame for the NSVSO. Moreover, any information gathered as part of the NSVSO will be maintained on a confidential basis and any published estimates will only be shared at the aggregate level.

BJS has contracted with the National Center for Victims of Crime and the RAND Corporation (an independent non-profit public interest research organization) on this project. One of RAND's researchers will be reaching out to you shortly to see if you would be willing to share this extremely important information with BJS and to answer any questions you might have about the purpose of the NSVSO or how your contribution will be used. I very much hope that you will be willing to assist with this important effort.

In the interim, if you would like to discuss the project, its goals, or this specific request in more detail, please feel free to contact BJS statistician and project manager, Lynn Langton, at lynn.langton@usdoj.gov or 1-202-353-3328.

Thank you in advance for your assistance.

General Instructions

Your organization is receiving this survey because it has been identified as providing at least some services or assistance to victims of crime. The survey should be completed by the person(s) in your organization with knowledge of and access to information on the provision of these services. To help you prepare to take the survey, we will be asking for information about the number and types of services your organization provided to victims in the past year, the types of crimes for which victims sought your services in the past year, the number of staff providing victim services at your organization, and your victim services budget. The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete. Please respond to all questions.

Confidentiality Assurances

This survey does not ask you to provide information about individual staff or victims, or any personally identifying information. This survey will only ask you basic information about your organization, for example where it is based (e.g., government, campus, medical facility), types of victims served, and types of services offered. The information you provide will be publicly available. This study is voluntary, you may discontinue participation at any time and decline to answer any questions.

For the remainder of the survey, unless indicated otherwise, provide your answers based on the most recent 12 months of data – calendar year or fiscal year, depending on how your organization operates as answered in Question G1.

The following questions concern services your organization provided to victims of crime or abuse during past calendar/fiscal year.

Did you provide any of the following services to victims within the past calendar/fiscal year?

We recognize that victim service organizations provide a wide array of services to victims. For the purposes of this survey, we are asking about general categories of services you provided to victims, which may not capture your victim service offerings in detail. Do your best to place the services you provided within the general categories provided.

Cognitive Testing Report

COGNITIVE TESTING REPORT

To conduct an initial test the National Survey of Victim Service Provider (NSVSP) instruments, we administered two rounds of cognitive interviews with a sample of Victim Service Providers (VSPs). Because VSPs encompass a wide array of organization types, we made an effort to recruit various providers within each of the three broad category types -- primary providers (e.g., domestic violence shelters, rape crisis centers, homicide survivor groups, etc.), secondary providers (e.g., prosecutor-based providers, hospital-based providers, campus providers, etc.), and tertiary providers (e.g., homeless shelters that provide services to victims but do not have specific programs or staff dedicated to working with crime victims). Table 1 provides a summary of the number of VSPs within each VSP category that participated in the cognitive interviews.

Table 1: Number of Cognitive Interview VSP's by Category

Cognitive Interview	Primary VSP	Secondary VSP	Tertiary VSP	Total
Round One	3	5	1	8
Round Two	4	3	0	7
Total	7	8	1	15

Most participants' cognitive interview feedback resulted in minor edits to question wording or tweaks to particular response items. However, some cognitive interview feedback resulted in more substantial edits to particular questions and the addition of a few new items. During the first round of cognitive testing, many cognitive interview participants reported taking an hour or more to complete the survey in its entirety. Therefore, we also made edits to the instrument following the first round of cognitive testing in an effort to shorten sections while preserving as much meaningful data as possible (participants during the subsequent round of cognitive testing were able to complete the edited instrument in 30 minutes or less). Below, we summarize major substantive changes to existing questions and describe new items that were added to the instrument based upon both rounds of cognitive testing.

Edits to existing items

Section G: Services for Victims

Because the first round of the cognitive testing revealed most participants were taking an hour or more to complete the instrument, we edited the services provided question to create a shorter list response options. The condensed services list still encompasses the bulk of services provided but is easier for providers to complete.

In addition, some respondents reported confusion when responding to the questions asking about the types of crime victims receiving services. Respondents were unsure whether to report all crime types experienced by victims or only report the presenting crimes types for which victims initially sought services. While both pieces of information are potentially of importance, one of the main purposes of the full survey is to obtain a better picture of the victim services field. While there are many variations in VSPs, a principle distinguishing feature is their victimization focus. To be able to compare answers by groups of providers with differing victim-foci, we edited the victim type question to ask about crime types for which victims sought services.

Section H: Staffing

Respondents reported a significant amount of burden and confusion when asked to classify staff according to position type. Since we primarily plan to use staffing levels to classify organizations by size, we edited questions under Section H to solely ask about the total number of full-time and part-time paid staff, dropping counts of volunteers and breakouts by position type.

Section I: Funding

Cognitive interview results indicated that funding questions asking about a provider's total budget for direct services to crime victims was difficult for respondents to answer, even for providers whose sole purpose is centered around victimization. Activities for which providers are funded may also include prevention, outreach, public education, policy advocacy, and networking. Therefore, we edited funding questions to ask more broadly about victim-related programming, including direct services, prevention, outreach and education efforts.

Section J: Record Keeping

Some respondents reported confusion when answering questions about the type of electronic management systems they use to track individual cases. To reduce confusion, we edited the question to simply ask respondents whether their organization uses an electronic management system to maintain case files. If respondents answer affirmatively, they are then asked whether the system tracks all individual cases.

Additional items

Section G: Services for Victims

Cognitive interview participants reported some difficulty answering questions according to the reference period of the prior 12 months, as different organizations operate on different schedules. To avoid potentially high levels of missing item responses due to confusion/difficulty with the time period requirement, we added a question to the instrument at the beginning of Section G that asks, "Does your organization operate/report data on a calendar year or fiscal year?" If the respondent reports, "fiscal year" a follow up question then asks the date of the beginning of the fiscal year. All subsequent questions then ask about the most recent calendar/fiscal year, depending on which option the respondent selected.

Section H: Staffing

To reduce respondent burden, we no longer ask for counts of volunteers in the staffing question. To still be able to provide some information about providers' use of volunteers, we add a separate question to Section H that simply asks whether the organization uses volunteers to provide services to victims.

Section K: Current Issues of Concern to Victim Service Providers

To provide VSPs the opportunity to report on areas of concern, we added Section K which includes a series of questions asking respondents to indicate their organization's level of concern about issues relevant to the operation of victim service programming. Respondents are asked to rate their level of concern about their organization's ability to retain staff, the amount of victim services funding their organization received in the past year, the predictability of future funding, the burden of grant reporting, and their organization's ability to access technology.

For the remaining 26,350 victim service providers, it will take the average interviewed respondent an estimated 20 minutes to respond.
- 6) An estimate of the total public burden (in hours) associated with the collection: There are an estimated 8,783 total burden hours associated with this collection.

NATIONAL CENSUS OF VICTIM SERVICE PROVIDERS

<<DATE>> <<SUID>>

<<CITY, STATE ZIP>>

Dear <<TITLE>><<LNAME>>:

The U.S Department of Justice’s Bureau of Justice Statistics (BJS) and Office for Victims of Crime (OVC) are working together to gather much needed data about organizations, programs, and other types of providers that serve victims of crime or abuse. Information is needed about potential gaps in services, resource limitations, and the allocation of existing resources for victims. Gathering this information will help to build capacity to better serve victims, their families, and communities, and to sufficiently resource and support the community of service providers working to meet their needs every day.

BJS and OVC are working with RAND, the National Center for Victims of Crime, and National Opinion Research Center (NORC) at the University of Chicago to conduct this first National Census of Victim Service Providers (NCVSP). The NCVSP is a census of all organizations, programs, and other providers that serve victims of crime or abuse. While there have been many smaller surveys in the past, none have attempted to gather information that reflects the entire field of providers designated to serve victims across the US. Our goals are to first define the field across a diverse landscape of victim service providers, including learning how many entities serve victims or survivors of different types of crime and abuse; gather information about basic forms of service; and begin to understand staff size, budgets, and funding sources.

Your participation is extremely important to the success of this study. Participation from all entities that offer support or services to crime and abuse victims is critical for the NCVSP to accurately reflect the broad field of victim service providers. The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete. Recognizing the daily burdens and urgency often associated with the many responsibilities incumbent upon providers serving victims of crime or abuse, we respectfully ask that you complete the NCVSP within one month. There are no major risks/discomforts to you as a participant. The time that you spend will result in data that will improve understanding, capacity, and support of your critical field.

We encourage you to visit the following secure website <https://connectcai.norc.org/Survey/Start/cawi/NCVSP.html> to complete the NCVSP survey using the following unique username and password: <<INSERT NAME/PASSWORD >>.

Alternatively, if you prefer, we can send you a paper version of the survey that you can mail or fax back to NORC. Please contact Angela Herrmann from NORC at 1-877-504-1086, to request a paper copy of this survey. If you would like more information about this survey, the larger project, or the many organizations working on or supporting this effort, please visit the project website at <http://www.bjs.gov/content/ncvsp.cfm>. You may also contact Angela Herrmann with additional questions by telephone 1-877-504-1086, or e-mail ncvsp@norc.org.

Although this study is voluntary, we urgently need and appreciate your cooperation to make the results comprehensive, accurate, and timely. We thank you for your time and participation in this important project.

Sincerely,

Jeri Mulrow

NATIONAL CENSUS OF VICTIM SERVICE PROVIDERS

We recently sent you the National Census of Victim Service Providers (NCVSP).

This survey, by the U.S Department of Justice’s Bureau of Justice Statistics and Office for Victims of Crime, is the first national data collection of all victim serving organizations and agencies. To build the necessary capacity to better serve victims, their families, and communities, we need data on the allocation of resources that serve victims, and on potential gaps in services or other resource limitations. While there have been many smaller surveys in the past, none have attempted to gather basic information that accurately reflects all parts of the victim services field across the U.S. Our primary goals are to define the field of victim service providers by learning how many organizations and agencies serve victims or survivors of different types of crime and abuse; gather information about basic forms of service; and begin to understand staff size, budgets and streams of funding. These types of data are critical for documenting the needs of victim service organizations and agencies, helping to plan for the future, and attracting government and private funding to support your critical work.

If you have already completed and returned the NCVSP, please accept our sincere thanks. If not, please do so this week. It is extremely important that we obtain a high response so that accurate information may be presented to the victim service provider community.

Please go to the following secure website <https://connectcai.norc.org/Survey/Start/cawi/NCVSP.html> to complete the NCVSP survey using the following unique username and password: <<INSERT NAME/PASSWORD >>. If you prefer, as an alternative, we can send you a hard copy version of the survey that you can mail or fax back to NORC. Please contact Angela Herrmann from NORC at 1-877-504-1086 if you want a hard copy.

Dear <<TITLE>><<LNAME>>:

We have been trying to reach you over the last month to complete the National Census of Victim Service Providers (NCVSP) and we have not yet received your response.

This survey, by the U.S Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Statistics and Office for Victims of Crime, is the first national data collection of all victim serving organizations and agencies. Follow-up Phone Prompting Script

Hello, my name is [NAME]. I'm calling from NORC at the University of Chicago. I need to speak with

We recently sent you an invitation to complete the National Census of Victim Service Providers, also known as the NCVSP. The NCVSP is a very important study of victim service providers by the US Department of Justice. The NCVSP will provide for much needed data to help providers like your organization to better serve victims, and identify gaps in services and resource limitations for victims across the US.

Did you receive the letter or email invitation that we sent?

• IF THEY DID RECEIVE THE INVITATION

Have you completed the survey?

IF YES, Please accept our sincere thanks. AND ASK THEM IF THEY CAN RETURN THE SURVEY IN THE NEXT WEEK IF THEY DID PAPI. ALTERNATIVELY, IF THEY DID IT BY WEB THEN DOUBLE CHECK THE SYSTEM FOR A RECENT ONLINE COMPLETION WITHIN THE NEXT DAY.

IF NO — Would you be willing to complete a survey? It takes about 20 minutes. We have three ways to complete the survey. I can email you the link and your organization's PIN and password to access our online version of the survey. We can also mail a paper version of the survey to you mail if you prefer that method. Also, we can complete the survey over the phone. We can complete the survey right now if you have about 20 minutes or, if you don't have time right now, we can schedule a convenient time to call back.

[OPTION 1] IF A FIRM 'NO' TO COMPLETING A SURVEY:

I appreciate that you do not wish to participate and we will not contact you again after this point, but could you tell me why you will not be participating?

Is it because:

- i. The survey does not seem to be important;
 - ii. The survey asks for information that you do not want to provide to the federal government;
 - iii. The survey seems too burdensome;
 - iv. You do not have the time or staff to complete the survey;
 - v. You do not participate in any surveys ever.
 - vi. Another reason?

[OPTION 2] IF A 'YES' TO COMPLETING THE SURVEY NOW BY PHONE: PROCEED WITH THE PHONE VERSION OF THE SURVEY

[OPTION 3] IF A 'YES' BUT THEY HAVE QUESTIONS - PROCEED TO ANSWER QUESTIONS USING THE ATTACHED FAQ. IF THEY WANT TO DO SURVEY NOW THEN BEGIN SURVEY OVER THE PHONE OR SCHEDULE A CALL TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY OR REMIND THEM OF WEB OPTION OR HARD PAPI TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY.

[OPTION 4] IF A 'YES' BUT THEY WANT EITHER WEB OR MAIL MODE – CONFIRM THE CONTACT INFORMATION (BOTH EMAIL AND POSTAL ADDRESS) OF THE RESPONDENT. SEND THE EMAIL IMMEDIATELY.

[OPTION 5] IF A 'MAYBE': TRY TO ADDRESS ANY OF THEIR CONCERNS (CONSULT BELOW FAQ AS NECESSARY) AND TELL THEM THAT IF THEY CANNOT DO IT NOW THAT YOU COULD CALL THEM BACK AT THEIR CONVENIENCE OVER THE NEXT WEEK TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY. OR SEE IF THEY WILL AGREE TO DO THE SURVEY USING THE WEB OR PAPER VERSION.

FIRST, ASK THEM IF THEY HAVE SPECIFIC CONCERNS ABOUT THE STUDY OR HAD QUESTIONS ABOUT THE PURPOSE OR NATURE OF THE SURVEY.

ATTEMPT TO ADDRESS THOSE CONCERNS AND EXPLAIN TO THEM THE VALUE OF THE SURVEY AND WHY WE ARE DOING THE SURVEY. USE THE FOLLOWING SCRIPT TO EXPLAIN THE STUDY:

The survey should only take about 20 minutes to complete. The time that you spend will result in data that will improve understanding, capacity, and support of your critical field.

I am happy to answer any questions you have about the survey and its importance for charting the future of victim service providers in the US. If you are online now, I can also walk you through the project website that has more information about the survey and show you the many organizations are working on or supporting this effort [E.G., OVC, OVW, VOCA ADMINISTRATORS]. The project website is at <https://connectcai.norc.org/Survey/Start/cawi/NCVSP.html>.

Although this study is voluntary, we urgently need and appreciate your cooperation to make the results comprehensive, accurate, and timely.

- IF THEY DID NOT RECEIVE THE INVITATION OR ARE OTHERWISE UNAWARE OF THE SURVEY:

VERIFY THAT THE INFORMATION WE HAVE FOR THEM IS CORRECT. We have been sending our survey materials to _____, using the email address _____ and the following phone number _____. Is that the correct address for your organization?

IF IT IS NOT THAN UPDATE OUR RECORDS AND PROCEED TO EXPLAIN THE SURVEY USING THIS LANGUAGE:

IF THE VSP PROVIDES A CLEAR REFUSAL THAN YOU SHOULD SWITCH TO OPTION 1 ABOVE.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS (FAQs)

What is the purpose of this survey?

Our goal is to define the field of victim service providers. We are trying to learn

- How many organizations and agencies serve victims of crime or abuse

- The types of victims serviced and the types of crimes or abuse they experienced;
- What basic forms of service the organizations provide;
- What size staff and budgets the organizations have; and
- What funding the victim service providers use to assist victims and survivors.

Who is funding this Survey?

The U.S Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Statistics, with funding from the Office for Victims of Crime is funding this research.

Why is this study being funded?

Increasingly, data collection and analysis is being prioritized as a way to better understand the scope of violence and crime in America. However, we do not have the appropriate data to address the needs of crime victims or the capacity of organizations that serve victims. The NCVSP will fill an important information gap and provide more reliable data on the allocation of resources to provide service to victims, as well as gaps in services and resource limitations.

Who are the other companies that are involved?

USDOJ is working with RAND, the National Center for Victims of Crime, and NORC at the University of Chicago to conduct survey. RAND helped USDOJ to create the survey itself and NORC is the data collection contractor.

Aren't there other surveys that already do this?

No, there aren't. This is the first survey of all victim serving organizations and agencies. While there have been many smaller surveys in the past, none has attempted to gather basic information that accurately reflects all parts of the victim services field across the US.

Why does it matter if my organization responds?

Your participation is extremely important to the success of this study. Participation from all entities that offer support or services to crime and abuse victims is critical for the NCVSP to accurately reflect the broad field of victim service providers. If this first survey achieves solid participation—that is we have confidence that we now know what “the field” looks like—it would then be possible to obtain more detailed information in a subsequent survey about the staff, standards, trainings, technology, and other information about victim service providers.

How long will it take to do the survey?

The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete.

Who else will see my answers? Are there any other risks to my organization?

This survey does not include questions about individual people, staff or victims, within your agency. This survey will only ask you basic information about your organization, for example where it is based (e.g., government, campus, medical facility), types of victims served, and types of services offered. The information you provide will be made available to the public. This study is voluntary. You may discontinue participation at any time and decline to answer any questions. There are no major risks/discomforts to you as a participant. We urgently need and appreciate your cooperation to make the results inclusive, accurate and timely.

I would like to see some other information about this survey. Where can I look?

I am happy to answer any questions you have about the survey. If you are online now, I can also walk you through the project website that has more information about the survey and show you the many organizations working on or supporting this effort (e.g., OVC, OVW, VOCA administrators). The project website is at <https://connectcai.norc.org/Survey/Start/cawi/NCVSP.html>.

Thank you for your time.

YOU CAN BEGIN THE PHONE SURVEY IF THEY PREFER TO DO THE SURVEY OVER THE PHONE OR SECURE A DATE AND TIME FOR ANOTHER TIME TO DO THE SURVEY.

END CALL.

Dear <<TITLE>><<LNAME>>:

The National Census of Victim Service Providers (NCVSP) is quickly coming to a close and we have not yet received your response.

The research team has made multiple attempts to reach you by phone and mail over the past couple of months. The NCVSP is a very important survey by the U.S Department of Justice's (USDOJ) Bureau of Justice Statistics and Office for Victims of Crime and is the first national data collection of all victim serving organizations and agencies. To build the necessary capacity to better serve victims, their families, and communities, we need data on the allocation of resources that serve victims and on potential gaps in services or other resource limitations.

While there have been many smaller surveys in the past, none have attempted to gather information that reflects the entire field of providers designated to serve victims across the US. Our goals are to first define the field across a diverse landscape of victim service providers, including learning how many entities serve victims or survivors of different types of crime and abuse; gather information about basic forms of service; and begin to understand staff size, budgets, and funding sources. These types of data are critical for documenting the needs of victim service organizations and agencies, helping to plan for the future, and attracting government and private funding to support your important work.

Your participation is extremely important to the success of this study. Participation from all entities that offer support or services to crime and abuse victims is critical for the NCVSP to accurately reflect the broad field of victim service providers. The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete. There are no major risks/discomforts to you as a participant.

We ask that you take a short amount of time to complete and return the form by _____.

Please go to the following secure website <https://connectcai.norc.org/Survey/Start/cawi/NCVSP.htm> to complete the NCVSP survey using the following unique Pin: <<PIN>>.

Alternatively, if you prefer, we can send you a paper version of the survey that you can mail or fax back to the National Opinion Research Center (NORC) at the University of Chicago. Please contact Angela Herrmann from NORC at 1-877-504-1086, to request a paper copy of this survey. If you would like more information about this survey, the larger project, or the many organizations working on or supporting this effort, please visit the project website at <http://www.bjs.gov/content/ncvsp.cfm>. You may also contact Angela Herrmann with additional questions by telephone 1-877-504-1086, or e-mail ncvsp@norc.org.

Although this study is voluntary, we urgently need and appreciate your cooperation to make the results comprehensive, accurate, and timely. We thank you for your time and participation in this important project.

Sincerely,

Jeri Mulrow
Acting Director, Bureau of Justice Statistics

Joye Frost
Director, Office for Victims of Crime

Last Chance Phone Script

Hello, my name is [NAME]. I'm calling from NORC at the University of Chicago. I need to speak with _____.

We have been trying to get a staff member of _____ to complete the National Census of Victim Service Providers called the NCVSP.

We apologize for all the contacts by phone on _____ and the letters [AND/OR EMAILS] over the past couple of months. However, the NCVSP is a very important survey for victim service providers to complete to ensure your organization's experience is counted in this first national study of victim service providers by the US Department of Justice. The NCVSP will provide for much needed data to help providers like your organization to better serve victims, and identify gaps in services and resource limitations for victims across the US.

The NCVSP survey is now closing and we have not received your response. It is very important that we get responses from all of the organizations that have been selected so that all different types of victim service providers can have their voices heard.

Did you intend to complete the survey?

If Yes: Thank you. As I stated, we are very near the end of data collection. We have three ways to complete the survey. If you have about 20 minutes right now, we can complete the survey over the phone. If you don't have time right now, we can schedule a time to call back in the next day or two, I can email you the link and your organization's PIN and password to access our online version of the survey. We can also send a paper version of the survey to you via express mail if you prefer that method.

Could you complete a survey with us now over the phone?

[OPTION 1] IF A FIRM 'NO':

I appreciate that you do not wish to participate and we will not contact you again after this point, but could you tell me why you will not be participating?

Is it because:

- vii. The survey does not seem to be important;
- viii. The survey asks for information that you do not want to provide to the federal government;
- ix. The survey seems too burdensome;
- x. You do not have the time or staff to complete the survey;
- xi. You do not participate in any surveys ever.

xii. Another reason?

[OPTION 2] VSP STATES THAT THEY JUST COMPLETED IT A DAY OR SO BEFORE OUR CALL: THANK THEM AND ASK THEM IF THEY CAN RETURN THE SURVEY IN THE NEXT WEEK IF THEY DID PAPI. ALTERNATIVELY, IF THEY DID IT BY WEB THEN DOUBLE CHECK THE SYSTEM FOR A RECENT ONLINE COMPLETION WITHIN THE NEXT DAY.

[OPTION 3] IF A 'YES': PROCEED WITH THE PHONE VERSION OF THE SURVEY

[OPTION 4] IF A 'YES' BUT THEY WANT EITHER WEB OR MAIL MODE – CONFIRM THE CONTACT INFORMATION (BOTH EMAIL AND POSTAL ADDRESS) OF THE RESPONDENT. SEND THE EMAIL IMMEDIATELY.

[OPTION 5] IF A 'YES' BUT THEY HAVE QUESTIONS - PROCEED TO ANSWER QUESTIONS USING THE BELOW FAQ. IF THEY WANT TO DO SURVEY NOW THEN BEGIN SURVEY OVER THE PHONE OR SCHEDULE A CALL TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY OR REMIND THEM OF WEB OPTION OR HARD PAPI TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY.

[OPTION 6] IF A 'YES' BUT NOT NOW: REMIND THEM THIS IS THE FINAL OPPORTUNITY BUT THAT YOU COULD CALL THEM BACK AT THEIR CONVENIENCE OVER THE NEXT WEEK TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY OR SEE IF THEY WILL AGREE TO DO THE SURVEY USING THE WEB OR PAPER VERSION.

[OPTION 7] IF A 'MAYBE': TRY TO ADDRESS ANY OF THEIR CONCERNS (CONSULT BELOW FAQ AS NECESSARY) AND TELL THEM THAT IF THEY CANNOT DO IT NOW THAT YOU COULD CALL THEM BACK AT THEIR CONVENIENCE OVER THE NEXT WEEK TO COMPLETE THE SURVEY. OR SEE IF THEY WILL AGREE TO DO THE SURVEY USING THE WEB OR PAPER VERSION.

[OPTION 8] IF THEY CLAIM TO NOT HAVE RECEIVED THE INVITATION OR ARE OTHERWISE UNAWARE OF THE SURVEY: VERIFY THAT THE INFORMATION WE HAVE FOR THEM IS CORRECT. We have been sending our survey materials to _____, using the email address _____ and the following phone number _____. Is that the correct address for your organization? IF IT IS NOT THAN UPDATE OUR RECORDS AND PROCEED TO EXPLAIN THE SURVEY USING THE BELOW FAQ AND SEE IF THEY WILL COMPLETE THE SURVEY OVER THE PHONE. IF THE CONTACT INFORMATION IS CORRECT THEN STILL PROCEED TO SEE IF THEY WILL COMPLETE THE SURVEY OVER THE PHONE. IF THE VSP PROVIDES A CLEAR REFUSAL THAN SWITCH TO OPTION 1 ABOVE.

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS (FAQs)

What is the purpose of this survey?

Our goal is to define the field of victim service providers. We are trying to learn

- How many organizations and agencies serve victims of crime or abuse
- The types of victims serviced and the types of crimes or abuse they experienced;
- What basic forms of service the organizations provide;
- What size staff and budgets the organizations have; and
- What funding the victim service providers use to assist victims and survivors.

Who is funding this Survey?

The U.S Department of Justice's Bureau of Justice Statistics, with funding from the Office for Victims of Crime is funding this research.

Why is this study being funded?

Increasingly, data collection and analysis is being prioritized as a way to better understand the scope of violence and crime in America. However, we do not have the appropriate data to address the needs of crime victims or the capacity of organizations that serve victims. The NCVSP will fill an important information gap and provide more reliable data on the allocation of resources to provide service to victims, as well as gaps in services and resource limitations.

Who are the other companies that are involved?

USDOJ is working with RAND, the National Center for Victims of Crime, and NORC at the University of Chicago to conduct survey. RAND helped USDOJ to create the survey itself and NORC is the data collection contractor.

Aren't there other surveys that already to this?

No, there aren't. This is the first survey of all victim serving organizations and agencies. While there have been many smaller surveys in the past, none has attempted to gather basic information that accurately reflects all parts of the victim services field across the US.

Why does it matter if my organization responds?

Your participation is extremely important to the success of this study. Participation from all entities that offer support or services to crime and abuse victims is critical for the NCVSP to accurately reflect the broad field of victim service providers. If this first survey achieves solid participation—that is we have confidence that we now know what “the field” looks like—it would then be possible to obtain more detailed information in a subsequent survey about the staff, standards, trainings, technology, and other information about victim service providers.

How long will it take to do the survey?

The survey should take about 20 minutes to complete.

Who else will see my answers? Are there any other risks to my organization?

I hope that I answered any questions that you have about the NCVSP. Would you like to begin the survey now?

BEGIN THE PHONE SURVEY IF THEY PREFER TO DO THE SURVEY NOW OVER THE PHONE OR IF THEY CAN NOT DO THE SURVEY NOW SECURE A DATE AND TIME IN THE NEXT WEEK TO DO THE SURVEY OVER THE PHONE.

IF A FIRM 'NO,' FOLLOW THE ABOVE OPTION 1 'NO' PROTOCOL FOR ASKING ONE QUESTION ABOUT THE REASON FOR THEIR ORGANIZATION'S NON-RESPONSE. END CALL.
