You are being asked to participate in a research study titled “Understanding Knowledge and Beliefs about Translocation of Wild Pigs.” The purpose of the study is to measure key factors related to the management of wild pigs to aid in the development of strategies for reducing negative effects of wild pig populations. You will be asked to take the following online survey questionnaire, which we expect will take you approximately 15 minutes. Your participation is voluntary, and you can skip any question you do not wish to answer or withdraw at any time. We are not collecting directly identifying information, and when we report and share the data with others, we will combine demographic data from everyone who takes the survey so you cannot be identified individually.

You must be 18 or older to participate. If you have any questions, please contact Dr. Keith Carlisle, the Principal Investigator for the study at USDA-APHIS, by phone at 970-266-6047 or by email at keith.m.carlisle@usda.gov.

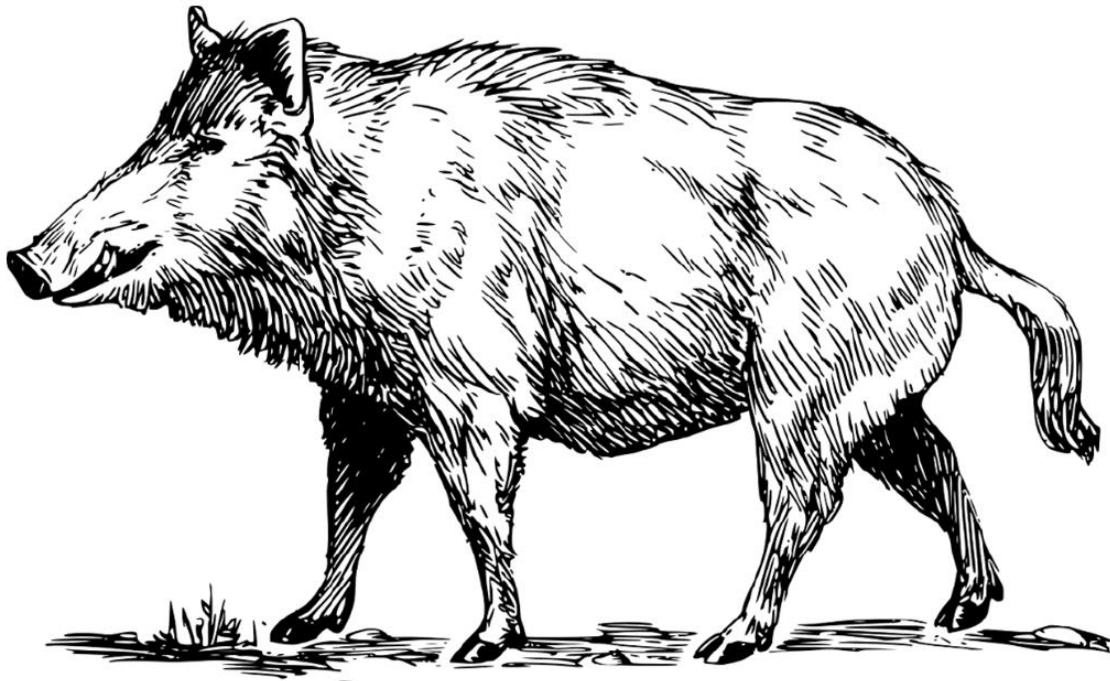

You indicate that you voluntarily agree to participate in this research study by submitting the survey.

Wild Pigs in Your State

Instructions: To complete the survey, please answer each of the following questions. In most cases, by clicking the back buttons at the end of each section, you can return to previously answered questions and update your responses. You can also leave the survey at any time and re-enter where you left off by clicking on the survey link again.

A note about the survey: You will be asked about wild pigs in your state (see “What are wild pigs?” below). Many of the questions concern the practice of capturing wild pigs, transporting them (for example, in a tow trailer), and releasing them elsewhere, most commonly for hunting purposes. We understand that you may not be familiar with wild pigs or these practices, which is why we have included “I don’t know” response options for many of the questions. If you’re not familiar with wild pigs or the practices we ask about, your responses will still provide us with important information, and we want to hear from you!

What are wild pigs? The term “wild pig” refers to any free-roaming pig, swine, or boar regardless of its appearance. Wild pigs may appear very similar to domestic farm or pet pigs, or they may have a more “wild” appearance. Wild pigs are also commonly called wild hogs, feral hogs, wild boar, feral swine, and feral pigs.
