A Message From Social Security

Your funeral director is helping the Social Security Administration by providing you this information about Social Security benefits. If the deceased was receiving benefits, contact us to report the death. If you think you may be eligible for survivors benefits, contact us to apply.

How Social Security Helps Families

Social Security survivors benefits help ease the financial burden that follows a worker's death. Almost all children under age 18 will receive monthly benefits if a working parent dies. Other family members may be eligible for benefits, too.

Anyone who has worked and paid Social Security Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) taxes has been earning Social Security benefits for his or her family. The amount of work needed to pay survivors benefits depends on the worker's age at the time of death. It may be as little as 1 to 1.5 years for a young worker. No one needs more than 10 years.

Who Can Get Survivors Benefits?

Here is a list of family members who are typically eligible for benefits:

- Surviving spouses age 60 or older.
- Surviving spouses at any age if caring for the deceased's child(ren) who are under age 16 or disabled.
- Divorced spouses age 60 or older, if married to the deceased 10 years or more.
- Surviving spouses and divorced spouses age 50 or older, if they are disabled.
- Children up to age 18.
- Children age 18 - 19, if they attend elementary school or high school full time.
- Children over age 18, if they became disabled before age 22.
- The deceased worker's parents age 62 or older, if they were being supported by the worker.

A Special One-Time Payment

In addition to the monthly benefits for family members, we can pay a one-time lump-sum death payment of $255 to a surviving spouse who was living with the worker at the time of death. If there is none, we can pay it to:

- A surviving spouse who is eligible for benefits.
- A child or children eligible for benefits.

This payment is not payable if there is no eligible surviving spouse or child.

How to Apply for Benefits

How you sign up for Social Security benefits depends on whether or not you are receiving other Social Security benefits.

If you aren't receiving Social Security benefits, you can apply for benefits by telephone, by accessing the Social Security website www.socialsecurity.gov, or by going to any local Social Security office. You may need some of the documents shown on the list below. Do not delay your application because you do not have all the information. If you do not have a document you need, the Social Security Administration can help you obtain it.

In many situations, if you're already receiving benefits as a spouse on your spouse's record when they pass away, we can automatically change your payments to survivors benefits once the death is reported to us. Benefits for any children will also automatically be changed to survivors benefits once the death is reported to us.

Information Needed

- Your Social Security number and the deceased worker's Social Security number.
- A death certificate. (Generally, the funeral director provides a statement that can be used for this purpose.)
- Proof of the deceased worker's earnings for the previous year (W-2 forms or self-employment tax return).
- Your birth certificate.
- A marriage certificate, if you are applying for benefits as a surviving spouse or divorced spouse.
- A divorce decree, if you are applying for benefits as a divorced spouse .
- Children's birth certificates and Social Security number if applying for children's benefits.
- Your checking or savings account information, for direct deposit of your benefits.

You will need to submit original documents or copies certified by the custodian of records. You can mail or bring them to the office. Social Security will make photocopies and return the documents to you.

Supplemental Security Income (SSI)

If you are 65 or older, disabled, or blind, and have limited income and resources, ask the Social Security representative about Supplemental Security Income (SSI). If you receive SSI, you may also qualify for Medicaid, Supplemental Nutrition Assistance Program (SNAP) and other social services.
