Listed below are seven options reflecting law school grading systems. Please review all seven before answering to ensure you select the most appropriate option.

If you listed a specific class rank by percentile on the Legal Education screen, select 'Not Applicable' at the bottom of the screen.

If you did not list a specific class rank by percentile on the Legal Education screen (e.g., you attend a law school that does not rank in percentiles or your law school partially ranks by percentile but you are not a ranked student), then you must choose the option that most accurately describes your law school's grading system and select the button that reflects your grade range/academic performance in law school.

Using the "Not Applicable" button: You must select a measurable level of academic performance in one of the seven grading system options unless you previously entered a specific class rank by percentile. If you select an incorrect option from among the seven types of grading systems listed below, you may select "Not Applicable" to undo your entry and then select the correct option. You may not list "Not Applicable" for all seven grading systems unless you previously listed a specific class rank by percentile. Failure to list either class rank by percentile or a measurable level of academic achievement will constitute an incomplete application and result in disqualification.
