Start of Block: Background

Background

The US Economic Development Administration (EDA) is a federal government agency that works directly with communities and regions to help them build the capacity for economic development based on local business conditions and needs. As part of EDA's work to support Indigenous communities, EDA has funded the Urban Institute (Urban), an independent, nonprofit research organization based in Washington, DC, to conduct this survey.

Purpose of this research

The purpose of this survey is to collect information about the economic development needs, planning, funding sources, and priorities of Indigenous communities, and by extension, of organizations that do economic development in and with Indigenous communities. Findings from the survey will inform EDA's work with Indigenous communities and will support other agencies, organizations, and communities in better planning, funding, and implementing economic development activities.

How the data will be used and shared

Urban will publish on its website a factsheet(s) and report(s) describing findings from the survey. Urban will also provide the dataset containing survey responses—including your name and affiliation—to EDA's division of Performance, Research and National Technical Assistance so that EDA can continue analyzing this data to support and inform its work with Indigenous communities.

Your responses will be identifiable to EDA, but neither the Urban Institute nor EDA will cite or report results in any way that would identify you, your organization, or your project. Your responses will be combined with information we receive from all other respondents completing this survey.

Results will be presented only in aggregate form and only for research purposes. Likewise, all requests for information from the public (through the Freedom of Information Act [FOIA] or otherwise) will be examined by EDA on a case-by-case basis to ensure that, where possible, personally identified information is protected from release.

Consent to participate

Your participation in this survey is voluntary. You may opt out of responding entirely. You may also stop taking the survey at any point—simply close out of the survey to do so.

While there is no direct personal benefit to participating, this survey provides an opportunity for Indigenous communities to communicate to EDA and other agencies and organizations working with Indigenous communities about their achievements, capacities, needs, and goals. We believe the risks associated with completing this survey are minimal. Survey questions focus on your professional experiences with and perceptions of economic development in Indigenous communities. The survey should take approximately 30 minutes to complete.

At the end of the survey, you will be invited to enter your name and email address to receive a $25 gift card as compensation for your time. All eligible respondents who complete the survey will receive a gift card.

If you have any questions about this study, please reach out to the research team and we will be happy to answer any questions: indigenous_economies@urban.org.

The following question(s) ask about “match funding” requirements.

Match funding, which is sometimes also called a “local match,” is money that a funder requires an applicant to contribute to a project. For example, a funder or funding opportunity might have a match funding requirement of 25 percent; for a $100,000 project, the funder would provide $75,000, and the applicant would be required to “match” this funding with $25,000 of the applicant’s resources. Depending on the details, match funding can be cash or can be “in-kind,” e.g., where the applicant covers $25,000 of staff time on the project.

Q9 Has \${e://Field/applicant_entity_name} applied to a funding opportunity at any time from 2019-2023 where they were required to provide match funding?

- Yes
- No

- In-kind: staff costs
- In-kind: facilities (e.g., rent on office space)
- In-kind: computing and other technology resources

	Not at all	Somewhat	A lot
Unable to meet the match requirement because the total match amount is too large.	0	0	0
