

IC: Police Report Requests

Crash investigators and other CIREN contractor staff must obtain official records to initiate and complete the cases. These records include police crash reports. Many police agencies have shifted from paper-based crash data collection to utilizing automated technology to report crash information. When possible, CIREN leverages this technology to electronically transfer data to minimize any burden on law enforcement. The non-electronic approach usually involves retrieval of existing records. The estimate of burden to police agencies to provide police crash reports is estimated to be three (3) minutes per request.
