A values-based organization allows us to be energized, engaged, productive, happy, and successful, impacting our personal well-being and our effectiveness as a team. Each of us has a stake and a role in our Program's culture, and we have an opportunity to affect that culture by living our Core Values.

The annual IV&V Program Values Survey is one tool we use to understand how well we are all doing at achieving a culture that's in sync with our Core Values.

As you take the survey, please remember:

- The survey is anonymous.
- Results are analyzed for themes and patterns and discussed to determine needed actions.

Please take a moment to read the descriptions of each value at the beginning of each section and keep those descriptions in mind as you answer the questions.

Comment boxes are included throughout the survey for you to share your thoughts and experiences pertaining to each value. Please share with us:

- Your suggestions for how the Program can help resolve any concerns that you may have.
- What you feel is working and what we are doing that is good and yielding positive results that we need to continue doing.

EVS Questions for Contractors

The following items originated from the Employee Viewpoint Survey (EVS). The EVS is a federal government survey used to determine areas of potential action and to determine "Best Place to Work" results that often receive public attention. However, the EVS is only deployed to federal employees, which is not representative of our entire workforce, so we're including these items here.
