

Author Full Name : Melinda EndressReceived Date : 01/09/2025 05:12 AMComments Received :

Today I saw a report about Chronic pain being a leading factor in suicide, well untreated under-medicated pain maybe. Certainly not well managed chronic pain. The 2016 and 2022 guidelines have done nothing more than target isolation and stigmatize pain patients. This big pharma CDC money grab is killing innocent patients while swapping them from full agonist opioids to Suboxone or Buprenorphine for safety but more money more speaking fees and expert witness fees, when they both are still opioids. If a patient was stable never asked for an increase you want to prescribe a more expensive harder to withdraw from med all under cloak of safety and opioid elimination. Hypothetically and ethically unacceptable. Our national safety is at risk people need meds it can never be planned exactly for, but these intentional shortages on top of this fatal guidelines policy must end. You cannot torture post surgical, cancer patients because a teenager may steal grandma's Norco. Assigning and truth is the only people benefiting is PROP who wrote guidelines and now are paid to speak about opioid elimination. Please stop punishing pain patients!