I've been put through so much as a pain patient over the last 20 years. It would be reasonable to have killed myself at this point or at least given up career goals and gone on long term disability. It got so bad after 2016 updates I gave up on validating my pain and found years later after much damage to my body that I had liver, gallbladder, and inflammatory arthritis diseases. The script has flipped at the doctors office so now they wholeheartedly recommend drowning your senses with cannabis smoke and gaba seizure drugs. No matter the practicality of doing so they avoid treating the pain with compassion at all costs and the price I pay is not only having a life without hobbies and excursions other people can physically afford to do, but I must also suffer undignified, withering away while I use every bit of energy to struggle working and caring for myself
