

MIPS Promoting Interoperability Performance Category Hardship Exception Application Guide

2022 Final Document versus 2023 Final Document

Burden impact: The changes in this guide don't reflect policies in the CY 2024 Physician Fee Scheduled (PFS) final rule for the Quality Payment Program. There is no impact to burden as a result of the changes reflected in this crosswalk.

Change #1:

Location:

Reason for Change:

Alignment with current program year

2022 Final Document text:

Title: 2022 MIPS Promoting Interoperability Performance Category Hardship Exception Application Guide

2023 Final Document text:

Title: 2023 MIPS Promoting Interoperability Performance Category Hardship Exception Application Guide

Change #2:

Location:

Reason for Change:

Removed part of section title

2022 Final Document text:

Section: Table of Contents

Content: MIPS Promoting Interoperability Performance Category Hardship Exception Information for Individuals, Groups and Virtual Groups

2023 Final Document text:

Location:

Reason for Change:

Updated to account for program changes.

2022 Final Document text:

Section: Overview

Content: Who

Individual clinicians, groups, and virtual groups reporting via traditional MIPS or the APM Performance Pathway (APP).

- Third party intermediaries can submit an application with permission from the clinician or practice.

Some clinicians, groups and virtual groups automatically qualify for reweighting of the Promoting Interoperability performance category. If you qualify for automatic reweighting, you don't need to apply for a MIPS Promoting Interoperability Hardship

Exception.

- See Appendix A for information about the clinicians, groups, and virtual groups that automatically qualify for reweighting of this performance category.

2023 Final Document text:

Reason for Change:

Updated to account for new policy.

2022 Final Document text:

Section: MIPS Promoting Interoperability Performance Category Hardship Exception Information for Individuals, Groups and Virtual Groups

Content: You will complete the hardship exception application at the level for which you will report data to MIPS.

- If you are reporting data at the individual level, complete the hardship exception application at the individual level.
- If you are reporting data at the group level, complete the hardship exception application at the group level.
- Note, a group hardship exception application will only apply at the group level.

- If your practice is participating in MIPS at the individual level, don't complete the hardship exception application at the group level. You will complete the hardship exception application at the individual level for each clinician (who doesn't automatically qualify for reweighting) to be considered for reweighting.
